$150,000 river management program proposed

RESTORATION of the Carmel River to a state of health year-round is the goal of a proposal by the Carmel River Advisory Committee, which has recommended a $150,000 annual river management program. Stable stream banks, reinforced by healthy riparian vegetation — as seen in this view of the upper Carmel River — would be one of the primary

Supports library study

Dear Editor:

For 10 years the Monterey County Library has paid the city libraries of Carmel, King City, Monterey, Pacific Grove and Salinas to serve County residents. Last year almost $400,000 was taken from the county's library budget. With the exception of Carmel, the money goes to each city's general fund, which is no guarantee that it is being used to serve county patrons at all.

A recent library study found that these payments are too high and that service to rural areas is being short-changed. Our county system cannot afford to be drained so unfairly any longer. It will mean more cutbacks, less services and no possibility of a much-needed branch at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

No other county in California makes payments to its city libraries in this manner.

The study offers an equitable solution to what has been an expensive program. Please ask about the study at your county library, then contact your supervisor in support of the study, before the March 16 hearing.

Out of context

Dear Editor:

In your Feb. 11 issue of the newspaper Bob Miskimon quoted me on the issue of future water demand slightly out of context. The subject was the goal of 15 percent reduction in water use over the next 40 years via conservation, reclamation and reuse: "I think 15 percent is ridiculous. In 20 years we should have a 50 percent reduction in our water use."

My remarks actually focused on reduction of potable, drinking water quality supply, and not the full scope of water supply and demand. This differentiation of demand for drinking water as opposed to secondary quality water for domestic usage is often confused and muddled.

As some of your readers know, I am a strong believer in water reuse, recycling and general water conservation via economic pricing of various types of water availability. We do not need to use our precious potable supplies of water for flushing toilets, irrigating our gardens and washing our cars. In fact, less than 10 percent of all domestic water needs are for drinking quality water.

When long-range targets are set ridiculously low in matters of precious, life-sustaining commodities, this merely accelerates the days of eventual calamity and high risk for the next generation. A 50 percent reduction in demand for potable water is technically feasible and economically realistic for the next 20 years in this drought-prone area; 100 percent reduction is possible in the 40-year span. Let's get on with it!

Why pickets are at Bruno's

Dear Editor:

Rights! Mentality! To use such phraseology it is obvious that Mrs. Dowd and Mr. Saunders have no idea as to why the pickets are outside Bruno's Market. Do you think that the pickets enjoy standing outside day after day asking, not telling, people to go to some other store than Bruno's? To any one who knows my wife, Judy, who has worked at that market since the doors first opened, they realize that Bruno's has meant a lot to her. The people who came into the store were more than just customers — they were her friends.

And she theirs. Her devotion to the store throughout the past 26 years can not be doubted. But when one man can tell her she has no more union benefits — no more retirement and no more health program — she felt that she had no recourse but to walk a picket line. That picket line is the only way that Judy is able to let her employer know that he is unfair. Out of friendship and respect for her and the rest of the pickets is why the people are staying out of Bruno's in droves, not fear.

If the owners, in this case Dean Shoemaker, would sit down in good faith with the union and get this settled, everyone would go back to work. But this owner refuses, always having some excuse — first the election and now who knows what. So until this is resolved Judy, Earl, Jack, Bill, Alex, and Mike will be out there, asking only for a fair shake. And they will continue to take the slurs of people like Mrs. Dowd, who says they intimidate the customers, and Mr. Saunders, who questions their mentality.

Mrs. Dowd and Mr. Saunders, how would you cope with such a situation? If you are any kind of a human being you would check both sides of a problem. And go with what is right. I, for one, will never look at a picket line the same way again. For now I know that there are many other reasons than "more money and shorter hours" — in this case it all comes down to an owner making a promise in writing and then breaking his word in less than a year.

Judy and Company, I'm proud of you.

George, by George!

Dear Editor:

The lone person pictured attending the Carmel Planning Commission meeting of Feb. 17 in last week's issue of the Pine Cone was not David Greenwood, as the picture was captioned, but the undersigned.

Since the Pine Cone chose not to concurrently print the interview which I was requested to give, I would like to summarize the interview. Your reporter's question was — "As a businessman, what do you think of the city passing an ordinance covering mini-marts?"

My response was, I said, not made in the capacity of vice-president of the Carmel Business Association, since, to my knowledge, the subject has never been formally taken up by the C.B.A. I indicated that I was responding only as an individual Carmel businessman.

I told your reporter that I felt that the pressure for "mini-marts" was largely a result of constantly increasing rents in the business district, and that I believed the subject of regulating "mini-marts" to be a proper concern of the city. In my opinion, the uncontrolled proliferation of such outlets would have not only an adverse impact on the business sector, but on the community at large.

Reasonable regulations regarding "mini-marts" proposals are needed, and desirable.

I, for one, am anxious to further the Carmel Business Association's stated desire to open avenues of communication between the C.B.A., city government, and the citizens in general. The generally accepted concept of a monstrous chasm between the business community and the citizens of Carmel, is in my opinion, largely due to a lack of communication between the citizens, their elected representatives, and the C.B.A.

Both citizen and businessman suffer if Carmel loses its unique character. The community as a whole, must unite itself to preserve that character.

George J. Greenwood
Vice President

Carmel

Editor's Note: Mr. Greenwood's comments were not published in last week's edition solely because they were received after deadline and were planned for this week's paper. We thank him for recapitulating.

Congratulations to Peterson

Dear Editor:

My congratulations to Mr. Douglas Peterson on a difficult decision well made. Mr. Peterson sustained great pressures from interest groups and individuals in this community, all who attempted to direct the responsibility, which we, the voters, gave to him alone.

A new chief of police, highly qualified and experienced, is a positive decision for the entire community.

River restoration costs are equitably distributed

By ROBERT MISKIMON

IT'S A SAD but true fact of modern life, it seems, that nothing can be done without bureaucracy. And restoration of the Carmel River is no exception to the rule.

A citizens' committee which spent four months of study on problems associated with the river has recommended creation of an assessment zone to finance needed river works. (See news story in this issue).

While the costs projected for this proposed new sub-bureaucracy of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District — $150,000 per year — may appear staggering, there is some common sense and fairness in the approach.

There is little doubt that the Carmel River got as "sick" as it is today through the effects of man and human "civilization," most notably the creation of dams and the continued pumping of the underground water table.

Two primary effects of human activity have reduced the Carmel River to a mere suggestion of its former, pristine health. These are death of riparian vegetation through lowering of the water table and siltation caused by riverbank erosion. The two problems are interconnected and feed upon each other.

Although everyone on the Monterey Peninsula has a stake in the health of the river, property owners in Carmel Valley — especially those with riverfront properties — are most directly affected by the river.

THAT'S WHY the design of the proposed financing mechanism for the Carmel River management program seems equitable.

It would distribute the lion's share of costs for river improvement projects, such as erosion control, planting of riparian vegetation, and maintenance of fisheries, proportionately among citizens most affected by the river.

Carmel Valley property owners would bear 51 percent of the costs, and would have to approve formation of an assessment district. That 51 percent of costs would be broken down among Valley property owners based on size of property and proximity to the river.

The other 49 percent of the costs could be met by a water surcharge on consumers throughout the rest of the Monterey Peninsula, the committee has suggested.

There are those who will no doubt object to the formation of another bureaucracy, another assessment district, and another set of rules and regulations. In these inflationary times, that is a very real concern.

However, if there is ever to be any meaningful Carmel River management program, this would appear to be a good beginning. The bottom line is that the river won't be restored without the expenditure of funds.

This seems to be a fair and equitable way to distribute those costs, and it puts Carmel Valley property owners in the driver's seat in terms of accepting responsibility for river management.

The Mayor's Report

History of post office facility at Sunset Center

By BARNEY LAIOLO

I WOULD LIKE to refer to an article in last week's Pine Cone dealing with the Post Office building.

It's strange how history repeats itself. I recall my original plans that were presented to the federal postmaster in San Francisco by yours truly when I was previously in office from 1968-1972. At that time after approximately two years of discussion and study of the needs for future postal services I presented a plan for a combined parking and Post Office building at the North Field of Sunset Center.

This planning required many trips back and forth to San Francisco on the part of all involved. We eventually arrived at the point where all sides were in agreement and the plans were presented to the planning commission and received approval.

At that time there were some people who objected to the loss of the "ball field" at Sunset Center although it was used only about six times a year for ball games. As happens in bureaucratic circles the plan was shifted back and forth and many delays occurred. In the meantime the Postal Service was switched to the United States Postal Service, a private entity, and the idea was shelved.

This didn't happen, however, until Councilman Mike Brown decided to take on the project and appeared at the postal headquarters in San Francisco to inform postal authorities that Carmel had no need for this project. All discussions relative to this plan were terminated and the postal authorities decided upon building a new structure at the mouth of the Carmel Valley.

I might explain a little about our discussions during my interviews and some of the financial arrangements that were explored. The city was to have supplied the use of the land on a ground lease basis for a period of approximately 40 years at which time ownership of the total structure would revert to the city.

The construction costs were to be analyzed so that the city would pay only for the section of the building that provided public parking. The balance was to be paid by the Post Office. The plan included parking for postal employees as well as in and out driveways for trucks to load and unload mail. These were in addition to the public parking on the upper levels.

The approximate cost to the city at that time was $300,000. A monthly rental fee, while not totally determined at that time was also included. I must say that the actions taken by Councilman Brown happened after I left the council in 1972.

It's unfortunate that the original plan was not followed as we would have had our Post Office problems solved for many years to come and we would have partially solved the parking problem that is still with us.

I feel that while the Post Office operation has changed due to new additions at the mouth of the Valley, the original plan could well be reexamined and adapted to present day needs. I am willing and able to again pursue this project if it is the will of the people to have me so do.

I was pleased to have had the pleasure of meeting with our new Police Chief, John J. McGilvray, and his wife last Friday. They were here to acquaint themselves with the position and surroundings. It has taken a considerable amount of time on the part of Doug Peterson who is charged with the duty of selecting the new chief. I am certain that the many hours of work spent in finalizing the selection will have produced good, sound and fair results.

With a smile,
Mayor Barney

Planners to ponder 'mini-mart' move

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A SPECIFIC proposal for Carmel to regulate "mini-marts" may be developed by the time the Carmel Planning Commission meets March 17.

Planning Commissioner John Logan will work with Chairman Robert Stephenson and Planning Director Bob Griggs to prepare a "draft recommendation" for review by the full commission at its next meeting.

The commission sent a resolution to the City Council that asks for an extension of the moratorium on subdivision of retail space into smaller shops. The council was expected to consider the request at its March 2 session.

The moratorium was imposed in response to the subdivision of the Paradise building, northeast corner of Ocean and Dolores, into smaller shops. These subdivisions have been labeled "mini-marts" by the city.

At its Feb. 24 meeting, the commission heard a preliminary report from Logan on "suggestions" that should be included in an ordinance regulating mini-marts.

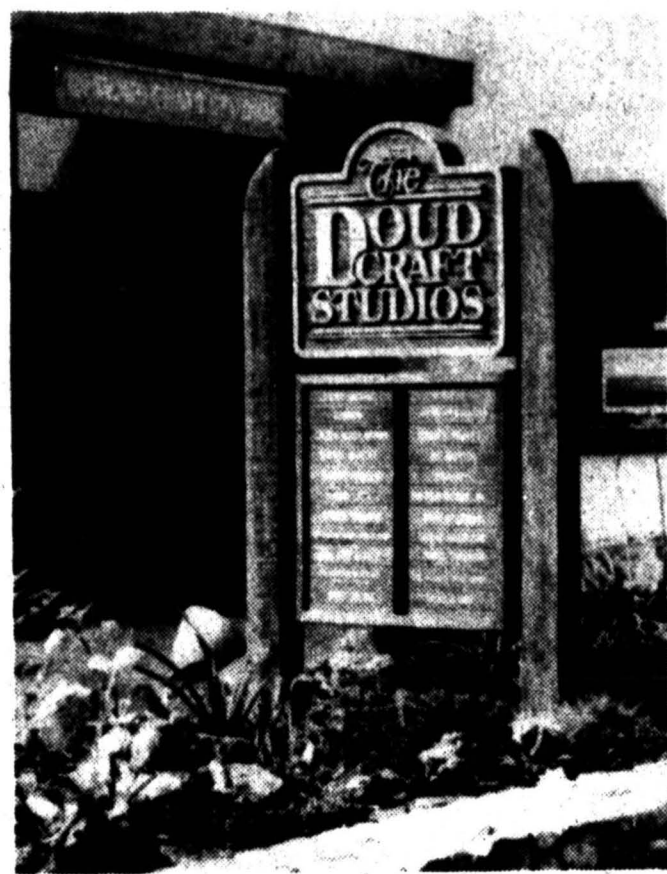

In an initial report, Logan defined subdivision of retail space as "the division of that property into two or three commercial enterprises, each under its own separate management even though the property itself is held under single ownership."

He defined "interior open public space" as: "that space within such subdivided property that is devoted to the free circulation of the general public — that is, of potential customers who come into the enterprise from the public way."

"The (interior open public space) is completely unencumbered: it does not include spaces occupied by benches, landscaping, or other devices that may impede the circulation of the public entering the establishment."

AT ITS FEB. 17 meeting, the commission pondered a formula that could be devised to ensure a certain amount of public access and to limit the number of shops, yet give the landlord the opportunity for some flexibility in shop size.

DISCUSSION OF ways the city can regulate "mini-marts" will continue at the March 17 session of the planning commission. Mini-marts are buildings subdivided into smaller retail shops, such as the Doud Craft Studios (above), on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh.

Logan suggested that only the ground floor of the building be subject to subdivision and that other floors be reserved for storage or administrative offices. However, he added that "upper floors may be used for professional offices or apartments as now provided."

He proposed that 20 percent of the floor space be allowed for public access and that an additional reserve be required for restrooms, storage, managerial offices and janitorial facilities.

Steve Jacobs, managing partner of Carmel Plaza, said "I think that 20 percent is probably a very large number if you only have two or three stores but a very small figure if you have six or seven stores."

Jacobs recommended that the city require 5 percent public open space for each store.

AFTER SOME discussion with Logan, Jacobs agreed to a proposal that allows 30 percent open space, but with a reduction of 5 percent per space if there is a minimum of shops.

Logan said the remaining floor space should be subdivided into separate shops with an average floor area of 600 sq. ft. and a minimum of 200 sq. ft. Jacobs added, later that the minimum should be 150 sq. ft.

An ordinance should allow some flexibility so that the Board of Adjustments could grant permission for an additional shop above the maximum number allowed if the business is "residentially-oriented," Logan suggested.

However, he admitted that detailed language would have to be worked out on what constitutes a "residentially-oriented" business.

COMMISSIONERS criticized local merchants for not attending the Feb. 17 discussion on mini-marts, but there were several business people in attendance at last week's planning meeting.

City Council member Howard Brunn and retired businessman Mark Raggett also spoke.

"You can't legislate good taste, but you're going to give the city a chance to review something before it gets out of hand," Raggett affirmed.

Brunn, who serves as chairman of an ad-hoc committee on mini-marts, said he does not favor prohibition of mini-marts, but would like to see them regulated.

"There are many small stores that are very good," he said. "But if something is not done, eventually the whole town could quickly disintegrate."

"I still think someone could use our carefully considered numbers and make a botch of it," said Commissioner James Wright.

Logan responded that the commission may want to "make the whole blooming building" fall under the use permit process. If a use permit was required, the building would have to undergo design review, both interior and exterior, he said.

Logan said he would prepare a "draft recommendation" with the help of Stephenson and Griggs. The recommendation will be submitted March 17.

At March 8 meeting

Water board to consider Carmel River program

By ROBERT MISKIMON

AN EIGHT-MEMBER citizens' committee recommends creation of a $150,000-per-year assessment zone to finance a comprehensive Carmel River management program.

The Carmel River Advisory Committee, in a report to be presented to directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District March 8, says Carmel Valley property owners should bear 51 percent of program costs.

The other 49 percent of river restoration project costs should be distributed throughout water users in the district by means of a surcharge, the committee report states.

Formation of the Carmel Valley assessment district would require approval by a majority of voters in Carmel Valley, said Dave Laredo, attorney for the water management district. The proposed water surcharge on other customers could be imposed by the district board of directors without a vote.

Major problems which the committee says the water management district should address include erosion, loss of riparian vegetation, and the lack of coordination and enforcement by regulatory agencies with jurisdiction over the Carmel River.

River front property owners on the Carmel River should pay 30 percent of the annual program costs divided by their relative amount of river frontage, the committee recommends. A river front property owner with 100 feet of bank would pay an estimated $30 per year.

Floodplain and watershed property owners would pay 21 percent of program costs, divided by the acreage of their property. To pay his share of the estimated $150,000 annual costs, a floodplain or watershed property owner with 10 acres would pay $7.50.

A recommended water surcharge — which would amount to about $2.42 per year for district water users outside Carmel Valley — could be levied by the board of directors without voter approval if Valley voters approve the assessment district.

The committee suggests that the assessment district be created with an initial life of 10 years, to "automatically expire" thereafter unless reenacted by voters. A preliminary budget shows administrative costs of $76,000 per year and $80,000 per year in project costs.

Administrative and personnel expenses would include a $20,000-per-year resource analyst, a $30,000-per-year engineer, and several part-time and contract personnel services, plus office rental and two trucks.

The committee recommends that an advisory council be formed to direct the implementation of management programs on the Carmel River.

THESE INCLUDE establishment of optimum channel width and bank steepness on the Carmel River to create erosion control standards, plus assumption of the permit process from the county for all river works.

The river management zone should also undertake a program of river replanting in areas where riparian vegetation has been damaged, and construct irrigation systems to keep the newly-planted plants alive, the committee report says. These are among other recommendations of the committee:

- The water management district "should develop an ordinance regulating the location, timing, and amount of groundwater withdrawn from Carmel Valley for export" to permit maximum stream flows in the river and minimize drawdowns to protect the health of riparian vegetation.

- The district should enact an ordinance to require water rationing whenever the Carmel Valley water table is lowered below the plant root zone in the unirrigated portion of the river between Carmel Bay and Camp Stephanie.

- Access to the river by vehicles should be strictly limited by permits issued by the water management district.

- The benefit assessment zone should acquire lands along the river within the riparian zone through a land trust to permit maintenance of vegetative habitats.

- Aerial photographs should be taken of the entire river management area on a periodic basis — and a geologist should walk the alluvial reach of the river regularly — to monitor erosion and the health of riparian vegetation.

"One of the first activities of the zone should be the development of a management plan that develops specific details of management and standards," the committee report states. "The plan should set forth a blueprint for management of the river and incorporate community goals and values. It should establish the erosion control and prevention, vegetation maintenance and other programs."

The report also suggests an educational campaign on river management and erosion prevention, aimed at property owners and citizens. The education program should be taken into the schools and should be presented to clubs and organizations, and meetings should be held with landowners to explain "costs, effectiveness, and liabilities involved with bank modification."

The committee, which was appointed by the water management board last November, held 15 meetings to develop its recommendations. Committee members are Pet Bernardi, Nancy Burnett, Leo Clark, Bob Greenwood, Edwin Lee, Corky Matthews, Jack Sassard, and Bob Zobel.

SEDIMENTATION in the Carmel River, caused by erosion of river banks, is one of the maladies which a proposed assessment district would address. Result of the steady build-up of siltation is widening of the river channel and the creation of sandbars, evident in this view of reach of the river east of Schulte Road, photographed before the rainy season.

Operated by local chapter

Red Cross ambulance service is 45 years old

CARMEL AMBULANCE service is 45 years old this month — a birthday that is being celebrated by the local chapter of the American Red Cross as it launches its annual fund-raising drive in March.

"Since March is traditionally Red Cross Month across the nation, we wanted everyone in the Carmel chapter area to know and better understand just how ambulances happen to be here and operate," said chapter chairman Douglas Despard.

The Red Cross owns and operated three ambulances stationed in Carmel, Carmel Valley Village and Big Sur. The ambulances are staffed by volunteers who serve on an "on call" basis, said Despard. The service is free to users.

Paid firefighters also use the ambulance as a first response vehicle in an emergency and as a "standby" at fires, according to ambulance chairman Art Black.

For fiscal year 1980-81 the Red Cross spent $6,738 for the Carmel ambulance, $4,313 for the Carmel Valley ambulance and $3,111 for the Big Sur ambulance. The money is used for maintenance, fuel and insurance, said Despard.

In fiscal year 1980-81, the Carmel ambulance responded to 842 calls, Carmel Valley ambulance answered 175 calls and the Big Sur ambulance handled 107 requests for aid, he said.

The volunteers are trained in first aid and have passed requirements for an Emergency Medical Technician certificate, Despard added.

When a call comes in, the volunteers on duty are alerted by telephone, hand-beeper or blasts from an air horn on the roof of the fire station.

BUT THERE WAS NOT always an ambulance for the volunteers to use in emergencies.

Carmel received its first ambulance in 1937 when there were no ambulances on the Monterey Peninsula and only two doctors in Carmel.

Despard said that the Carmel firefighters, who had been trained by the Red Cross in first aid, suggested the need for an ambulance.

"The Red Cross, as the sponsor of the first aid unit, seemed to be the logical organization to launch the funding appeal," Despard said. "Although this is not normally one of the functions of a Red Cross chapter, the members of the board were in favor of the idea."

In 1950, the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department organized an emergency first aid unit because there were no doctors or ambulance service deep in the valley, Despard said.

The Carmel Valley volunteers obtained the old 1937 Carmel ambulance for use in the 1950s.

In response to a tragic accident in the mid-1950s, Big Sur residents rallied to raise funds for a permanent ambulance for the area, said Despard. The ambulance is housed at the Cal Trans Highway Maintenance yard.

A fourth ambulance, operated by the Mid-Valley Volunteer Rescue Squad, is not funded through the Red Cross, Despard said.

However, that service is also offered free and serves residents who live in mid-Carmel Valley between San Carlos Road and Garland Park.

FREE EMERGENCY AMBULANCE service is available to residents of Carmel, Carmel Valley Village and Big Sur in ambulances supported by the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross. Volunteer Emergency Medical Technicians man the vehicles. Pictured above is John Jacoby with the new Carmel ambulance. At bottom left are Jeffrey Fry and Kalani Fonseca of the Carmel Valley crew; and at right is Tori Cheseborough of the Big Sur ambulance service.

PARKING almost always seems to be a topic of discussion when city officials meet and tonight, March 4 will not be an exception. The General Plan Advisory Committee will discuss a questionnaire directed toward merchants to solicit comments on problems that face the business community when it meets at City Hall. Above, rows of cars stretch along Junipero in the all-day parking slots.

General Plan Committee to quiz business people

By MICHAEL GARDNER

ANOTHER CITY-SPONSORED questionnaire is in the works.

The General Plan Advisory Committee will discuss development of a second questionnaire on March 4 that would solicit comments from merchants on issues related to the business community.

The community has spent two full meetings discussing questions for a questionnaire that would poll only registered voters. The city council was expected to review the first questionnaire at its March 2 session.

The council will eventually decide the fate of the second questionnaire if one is proposed by the General Plan Advisory Committee, according to City Administrator Doug Peterson. He said the full council would have to approve the poll before it is distributed.

Newly-appointed advisory committee member Alan Williams proposed the idea of a separate new poll geared toward the business community because, "The general plan process is strictly 100 percent residentially oriented, as it should be. But the business community has a great effect on the residential community."

Williams said he would like the committee to draw up questions for the poll that relate to parking, employees, type of business and types of stores the merchants would like to see.

"If we do this thing correctly, we can create an atmosphere where residential and commercial (interests) can co-exist. Right now, they're at each other's throats," Williams said. "The only way we can do this is to open the dialogue with these people. If we don't ask questions of the business community, we won't get the answers. No one will ever know the answers."

Williams said a questionnaire would be more effective than inviting merchants to a special meeting to discuss the business community.

"The merchants will spend a few minutes to fill out a questionnaire. But how many will come to meetings? Just a few. Then we will have the situation of a vocal minority speaking for the majority," Williams said.

THE COMMITTEE will also discuss land use, annexation, mini-marts and its relationship with the consultant, Earth Metrics, said Chairwoman Jane Mayer.

"One of the things we must look at is density and the use of the mini-mart in the commercial district. How does it affect density?" asked Mrs. Mayer. "The idea of 'village character' involved small shops, but I don't think anybody had in mind that a building like Paradise would be the result."

Mrs. Mayer added that the committee will also review land use issues in the 1973 general plan.

"I think we should also examine rezoning and annexation," she said. "The committee seems to feel that the city limits should be extended to the natural borders."

These "natural borders" are east to Highway 1, south to the river, north to Carmel Woods and west to the ocean, Mrs. Mayer said.

"I don't think we want anything happening again like what happened at the mouth of Carmel Valley," she added.

The committee is expected to discuss action taken by the council at its March 2 session that relates to the panel, Mrs. Mayer said.

The council was expected to determine whether it wants to spend an additional $14,000 and another 10 months to revise the general plan.

The proposed modifications in the contract with Earth Metrics call for the consultant to attend 19 meetings of the advisory committee over a 10-month period.

That extra time will cost the city an estimated $14,000.

The new figures would increase the contract cost from $58,250 to $72,540.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold said at the Feb. 23 council session that she opposed paying Earth Metrics $33 an hour for an environmental planner to attend the advisory committee meetings.

"We could cut these costs in half," she said. "There's no reason for them to be at every meeting. I would propose eliminating the environmental planner and cutting $8,000 from the $14,000."

Alan Williams and Gene Hammond, who were alternates on the advisory committee, were appointed by the council Feb. 23 to fill vacancies caused by the death of Les Gross and the resignation of John Eatherton.

CVPOA recommends assessment district

PROPERTY OWNERS on the north side of the Carmel River should pay for flood control measures which benefit them, says the board of directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

The board of directors called on the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to consider creation of an assessment district on the north side of the river to pay the estimated $132,000 to lower the levee on the south side to permit flooding of a portion of the eastern 134-acre Odello Ranch lands.

But the CVPOA opposes a recent proposal to allow the Odellos to increase development density on the eastern side to 162 residential units, in exchange for permission to let the county flood their property.

"We oppose additional development on the Odello property as compensation for lowering the levee," said CVPOA President Dick Dalsemer. "We believe the county should consider a formula under which the benefitted property owners on the north bank pay for lowering the levee or reimburse the Odellos for doing so."

Supervisors have decided to seek Coastal Commission approval for a plan to allow greater development density on the southeastern fringe of the Odello east property in exchange for flood rights as part of the Carmel area Local Coastal Program.

Valley permits are legal, county says

By ROBERT MISKIMON

TIME HAS run out for the city of Carmel to appeal permits for construction at the mouth of Carmel Valley, in the view of Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos.

The Carmel City Council forwarded to the Board of Supervisors a letter in which it questions whether 16 of 27 zoning and use permits issued by the county since 1979 are in violation of the Carmel Valley building moratorium.

City Atty. George Brehmer advised the council at its Feb. 23 meeting that the city could challenge the three most recently-issued permits in court.

The council agreed to send a copy of Brehmer's report to the Board of Supervisors and to ask the county to review permits for construction at the mouth of the Valley and to revoke those in violation of a court-ordered moratorium.

The city attorney reviewed all zoning permits, use permits and other discretionary permits approved for projects at the mouth of the Valley since a county construction moratorium took effect July 3, 1979. That ordinance was in effect until 1981 when passed by the Board of Supervisors, and then was extended another year to July of 1982 by a court order requested by the city of Carmel.

Both the moratorium and the Superior Court order prohibited the issuance of discretionary building permits unless the projects "would have little or no effect on population density or building intensity," Brehmer advised the city council.

In his review of the permits issued at the mouth of Carmel Valley, Brehmer focused on two questions: whether the permit allowed discretionary development, and whether its issuance would have little or no effect on population density or building intensity.

All zoning and use permits are discretionary, and 16 of the 27 permits issued since 1979 are for developments which would produce significant effects on population density or building intensity, Brehmer concluded.

The two primary zoning districts involved in development at the mouth of the Valley are PC (planned commercial) and R-3 (multiple family residential). Brehmer told the council the three most recently-approved permits which could be challenged are:

- A zoning permit granted to Richard Catlin Nov. 13, 1981 for 24,029 sq. ft. of offices and shops which would employ 40 persons.

- A use permit approved Dec. 12 for Carmel Properties to construct professional offices.

- A use permit issued Jan. 28 to Valentino and Co. for an 18,400 sq. ft. office building.

BUT DEPUTY County Counsel Jose Ramos told the Pine Cone/Outlook that the appeal period has expired on all three permits.

An appeal to the Board of Supervisors of a planning commission or zoning administrator permit approval must be filed within 10 days of receipt of the written notice of the approval, or within 15 days after the decision, Ramos said.

$142,590 in building in Carmel

Nineteen building permits for construction work valued at $142,590 were issued by the city of Carmel in February.

In his monthly report, Chief Building Inspector Ron Warren said all of the residential and commercial permits were for additions and remodeling. There were no applications for new commercial or residential construction.

There were 11 residential permits granted, four commercial, one public and three miscellaneous, he said.

The two largest projects that were issued permits were: remodeling and an addition for the Casanova Restaurant, Fifth between Mission and San Carlos, valued at $39,803; and for a public patio concrete slab at Sunset Center, valued at $35,000.

The building permits and 48 other miscellaneous fees for services netted the city

$2,503, Warren added.

In January, the city issued 15 building permits for construction work valued at $225,536 and netted $2,574 in permit fees, Warren said.

CONSTRUCTION proceeds at the mouth of Carmel Valley despite the Carmel Valley building moratorium. The city of Carmel thinks the county has violated a Superior Court order against discretionary building

In all three cases mentioned by Brehmer, the appeal periods have expired. Furthermore, all permits for construction projects at the mouth of the Valley were carefully considered in light of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, the building moratorium, and the general development plan for the planned commercial zone there, Ramos said.

"The zoning administrator didn't off-handedly grant them," Ramos said. "The criterion was whether the development would increase population density or building intensity. Clearly allowed would be building in an R-3 zone — for example an apartment house where you are building within the density allowed in the general development plan."

"Every one of these was approved before Carmel brought suit to have the building moratorium extended by court order. The question is whether a commercial development in the R-3 zone would have more of an effect than residential development which would be allowed without a permit?"

"They could go to court, but every single one of those was approved before the latest court case," Ramos added.

In his report to the city council, City Atty. Brehmer said he disagrees with the position taken by the county counsel's office that use permits could be granted in the R-3 district at the mouth of the Valley "because it was contemplated that structures of similar size and use were planned to be allowed on the properties prior to the moratorium."

"The general development plan provided for the PC (planned commercial) districts expressly did not approve the construction of any buildings," Brehmer said. "It is my opinion that 'increase in building intensity' specified in the (moratorium) ordinance means actual increase in the number of buildings and building coverage planned for in general development plans."

The city council followed Brehmer's advice permits that significantly increase population density or building intensity, but the county counsel's office disagrees. A lawsuit may be the final test of the question.

to request the Board of Supervisors to review the issuance of discretionary permits for projects in the mouth of the Valley and that specific findings of compliance with the court order be made before issuance of those permits.

And the council also asked supervisors to revoke all permits "issued in violation of the moratorium where rights to carry out the project have not vested."

COUNCILMAN Howard Brunn asked Brehmer at the Feb. 23 council meeting how much undeveloped land there is at the mouth of the Valley for which rights have not been vested.

But Brehmer replied that he didn't know. The council requested Brehmer to prepare his report after former Mayor Gunnar Norberg raised the issue of possible violations of the building moratorium at a January council meeting.

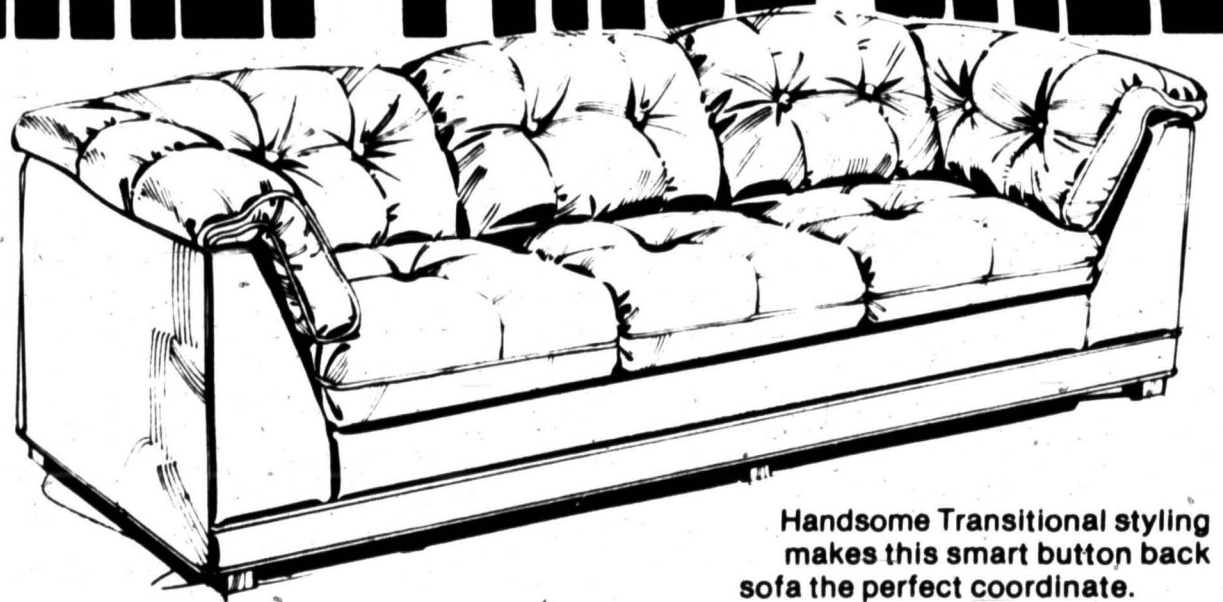

"What are we trying to accomplish here?" asked Councilman Brunn.

"I don't think there's any question we should send a copy of this to the Board of Supervisors," remarked Councilman Mike Brown. "It's a flagrant act before everybody that these steps have been taken."

"It's just another case of shutting the barn door after the horse has already gone," said Mayor Barney Laiolo. "The fact is, the mouth of the Valley is 90 percent built already."

Councilman Brunn did not vote on the matter since he plans to open a retail business in The Crossroads at the mouth of the Valley.

Business BeatCarmel Builders Supply to fade into history

By FLORENCE MASON

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS, especially those related to the housing industry, have brought about the demise of a Carmel landmark: Carmel Builders Supply. The firm, operated at its Junipero Street location since 1941, will close this month or next, says owner Tom Handley.

The property, which runs through to Torres at Fourth Avenue, is zoned for condominium or apartment development. Planning Director Bob Griggs says the city already has some definite ideas about what should or should not be built on the choice view property: nothing higher than two stories, small-scale buildings with considerable landscaping, and definitely not a hotel or motels. Condominiums seem the logical answer.

Is this golden opportunity to replace a "resident-oriented" business with residences for Carmel seniors, at lower cost?

TREND . . . OR COINCIDENCE?

We know of three Barnyard business owners who are about to establish second outlets or a new business within the city of Carmel. They are the Goldmans of Do Re Mi (reported in this column Feb. 18), Sandra Green and Robert McCormick.

'I ALWAYS WANTED TO BE IN CARMEL'

Sandra Lee Green is about to achieve her dream of owning a shop in our town. It will be a second Green Gallery, offering more of the contemporary art, glass, clay and fiber art works she has been selling at the Green Gallery in The Barnyard for the past five years. She also has a photography gallery in Monterey.

Ms. Green's new location is the just-enlarged space in the Plaza Mini-Mall last occupied by Seahorse Gifts. Her specialty is three-dimensional forms. One reason she persisted in looking for a Carmel location was that she believes local artists — especially those doing contemporary work — need more places in which to show their work. Fiber art works, another specialty, means "wall hanging as works of art," she told me.

Ms. Green, who has lived in the area 20 years, is single and lives in Monterey. When I asked her if she had any special "outside" interests, she said: "Art consumes my life! I look at beautiful objects wherever I find them — at the beach . . . in town . . .

MUSICAL CHAIRS . . . OR . . . MUSICAL SHOPS?

Robert McCormick finally decided to stop commuting from Aptos and settle in Carmel. It's no wonder, with his Vive La Difference in The Barnyard and now, his plans to move The Village Traveler from its present Plaza location to the corner of San Carlos and Ocean, then to open another shop at the Traveler's former location. You will have to wait a week to find out what the final names for these two Carmel establishments will be, as the Business License and Code Review Board had some problems with the names he suggested and McCormick was scheduled to return to the board with some alternatives.

But first: McCormick is not only one of the owners of Vive La Difference, he is also manager. With that, and two Carmel shops, it becomes obvious that something must give. McCormick said that for the time being he will continue to manage the restaurant, but "I'll have to start delegating responsibilities somewhere!"

His first move will be to establish the Village Traveler in the space now occupied by Philip Rowe's shoe store. "It's the concept of a smaller store moving into larger quarters," McCormick said. "I'll offer the same merchandise as my present store: luggage and travel accessories. The Plaza space will then become a shoe store, with emphasis on casual shoes."

McCormick and his wife, Barbara, who is lunchtime cook at Vive La Difference, found a new home at High Meadows. They have two sons, Brian and Billy, and a daughter, Perry. As for other interests or hobbies, McCormick's response to my question about that was not unexpected: "I have tons of other interests! But right now I'm most concerned about getting the two Carmel businesses going."

Sandy Swain, planning commission representative on the BLCRB, commented that she was delighted to see him taking over the San Carlos/Ocean corner. "It's a beautiful structure," she said, "I look forward to seeing it upgraded."

Talented Philip Rowe has fascinating plans: to get back into the field of designing shoes for women. He has designed for Bally and others in the past and it is something he is most enthusiastic about. "I don't have it all together yet," he told me, "but I really like the importing and designing end of it." Because he likes living in Carmel, he will do it from here. The special product he has in mind? "Better-grade moccasins out of Italy."

FROM ADAMS TO SCUDDER IN THREE MOVES

Good things come in threes for Richard Scudder. Manager of the three Carmel businesses owned by Robert and Royal Adams for the past three years, he is now the new owner! The stores, all on Fifth, between Junipero and Mission, are Adams Eden of Flavor (coffee, tea, herbs and spices), Adams Pot Bellied Stove (antiques and gifts for the home) and Adams Too (plants, garden equipment, antique silver and crystal).

THERE WILL be a second Green Gallery in Carmel soon. Gallery Director Sandy Green will open another Green Gallery at the Carmel Plaza "mini-mall." She will also keep the current one open at The Barnyard. Ms. Green (above at left with assistant Jan Dunlap) also operates a photography gallery in Monterey.

Scudder does not plan to make any changes. Both he and Royal Adams emphasized the fact that Scudder has lived in Carmel all his life. As Mrs. Adams said: "It's the best way to do it — turning them over to Richard. This way, we know the new owner will feel the same way we do about the quality of the things offered in the three shops." Appearing before the Business License and Code Review Board, Mrs. Adams said: "Robert and I are personally delighted. Richard has been like a son to us. It's meaning for us is that we are passing on what we created to a new generation. It's going into the future as we would like Carmel to be for the residents." She pounded the lectern decisively to emphasize that last word.

Scudder will take over some time in March. Formerly in fuel research for American Motors, he is single and lives in Carmel.

Why are the Adamses selling the shops they created, and what will they be doing? Selling active, that is certain. Mrs. Adams told me that she and her husband particularly enjoyed creating the shops. "That's the most fun! Now we're pooped

SPECIAL BULLETIN*"The Case of the Mysterious Gemstones"

by
Sam Jade, Private Eye

It all started March 1, 1982. A contest was beginning to unfold at LaPorte's. The object was to guess the identity of 20 gemstones in a specially arranged display. All I'd have to do is to correctly guess more stones than anyone else. The winner was to receive a stunning blue-green tourmaline ring worth $1500.00 (not a bad bag of cherries!)

Upon my arrival at 165 Fountain Ave., Pacific Grove, the address of LaPorte's, I was made aware of the relevant details of the case: Persons 18 years or older, could participate, no purchase was necessary, and only one entry per person was to be accepted. Although I was told that I could participate anytime between March 1 and March 20, between the hours of 10:30 a.m. and 4:45 p.m., I was anxious to crack this case. After careful examination of the evidence, I quickly completed my entry form and submitted it to a staff member for validation.

March 23, 1982: I sat by my phone waiting for the call that would notify the winner — The phone rang . . .

Find out if you're a Sam Jade, by investigating "The Case of the Mysterious Gemstones" at LaPorte's.

and ready to turn them over to Richard." What will they be doing? "Hopefully, we'll enjoy life. There are eight million things I like doing, including a lot of 'artsy-crafty' things. I love photography, for instance. And Robert is not one to waste time, either. Gardening is one of his special interests."

The Adamses have a 10-year-old daughter, Alexandra. She attends Woods School and will be going on next semester to Middle School. She and her parents were very active in the (unsuccessful) campaign to save Woods School, even though Alexandra would be moving on so soon. "It was our concern about neighborhood schools," Mrs. Adams explained.

It is certain that Royal Adams will continue her lively interest in local politics. The first thing on her agenda now, in fact, is setting up forums for the mayoral and City Council candidates. The series will be the result of the combined efforts of the Common Sense Committee, of which she is chairman, and the Citizens Group. Mrs. Adams will be interviewing the candidates herself.

It's apparent that the timing for the Adamses — and for Richard Scudder — couldn't be better.

A PLACE IN THE SUN

Myles Williams, the new owner of Carmel Inn, revealed plans for one improvement he'll be making at the local retirement hotel, and the Design Review Committee of the planning commission recommended approval.

It will bring a lot of sunshine into the lives of the Inn's residents. Williams plans to enclose a walkway on the south side of the building, giving it the appearance of a greenhouse. The only conditions recommended by the Design Review Committee were that the structure meet building and fire codes, and that it be made of anodized aluminum construction. Planning Director Bob Griggs explained to me that the latter recommendation was on esthetic grounds: the structural supports for the glass enclosure will have a look of bronze rather than the silver of plain aluminum.

The newly enclosed area will be accessible from five of the Inn's bedrooms as well as from the main living room.

COMING ATTRACTIONS AT THE CROSSROADS

Debbie Bradburn, marketing director, who is doing such a good job of keeping us informed about developments at The Crossroads, brings the latest word:

Soon to open is Bay Video, to be closely followed by Carmel Mercantile (two stores owned by Howard Brunn and Brittany's, which specializes in designer clothes. "The Collection" will open two antique stores and The Plantation Peddler, a store offering colonial American-style furnishings. The Beauty Shop is soon to be available, and also the Balas Studio, with fine jewelry.

Ms. Bradburn said that the next restaurant to join The Crossroads will feature Chinese food; the name is yet to be decided. That is expected to open around April 1.

And for those of you who might have become interested in the Maytag Laundromat since we told you about new owner Jim Bowen, take heart. It is still there, and in business. Development of the second phase of The Crossroads has just made it a little harder to get to for the time being. Parking is now around the corner, behind Safeway, and you can just walk around to the laundromat's back door.

THE FORMULA FOR SUCCESS . . . ?

Why do some new restaurants score an immediate success while others struggle along?

After my first visit, with my family, to Billy Quon's restaurant in The Crossroads, we discussed this question at some length.

It's obvious that Billy Quon's has scored an initial success. After being open just one week, it was filled by 6:15 p.m. the night we were there, in definite contrast to some other new restaurants in this area which are having a slower time of it. After sampling a variety of the menu items at Billy Quon's, we were still puzzled. The food is fine, but in our opinion not enough better than others to warrant the difference in initial popularity.

So what does make the difference? Perhaps location, to some extent; the restaurant is in the new and attractive Crossroads development. However, that might be seen as something of a disadvantage, too, as it is not in already well-traveled Carmel.

Ambience? Service? Perhaps we are getting closer. Billy Quon's is not Chinese in its decor or menu. In fact, we spent some time trying to decide what the prevailing theme is. According to owners Bill Lee and Dave Wheeler, it's "Taos, New Mexico." Other opinions among my group were: modern Inca, pueblo . . . Whatever it is, it is something eclectic (the overhead green-shaded lights, though casting a pleasant glow, don't quite fit in) and definitely attractive.

Attempting to define the look carried out by the waitresses' uniforms, my granddaughter came up with "Preppie." Her mother said, "Safari style." "Knickers," my son contributed. Whatever, they are, they are trim and the waitresses wear them well. More importantly, all of the young people employed at Billy Quon's were exceptionally pleasant and helpful. If the service was a little slow, we put that down to the newness of the establishment and the sudden influx of a large number of guests.

The genial owners seemed to be everywhere, greeting their guests and stopping to talk with them. When all was said and done, we concluded that perhaps this was the difference: an atmosphere of welcome, of caring, that surpassed our experiences elsewhere. Perhaps even an air of excitement.

The menu is varied and inasmuch as each of us in our group of five had a different entree, I can report that all were well received. The food seems to have a "different" taste that was hard for us to define. The desserts, made by the restaurant's own baker, came in for special plaudits: the pecan pie and the ginger cheesecake were excellent.

We're looking forward to a return visit. Next time, we'll try the truth of the owners' claim that it is not only "a great place for great ribs" but also a great place for a great Sunday brunch. On that menu: apple butter pancakes, cheese avocado or chili omelette and many other delightful-sounding items; also brunch cocktails such as The Bloody Viking and Our Famous Ramos.

Lee and Wheeler told us, with pride, that the tables, with their inlaid tiles, and other parts of the restaurant's decor are all made by local craftsmen. Perhaps it is that pride, and their own air of excitement about their new business, that make it special.

WANT TO BUY A BUSINESS?

I get social notes among the business items that come in from various sources. Don Bowen of Independent Realty Associates tells me that Charlie Ober just married "his lovely blond bookkeeper." When I catch up with them, I'll tell you more about that.

The news came along with Bowen's report on businesses he currently has listed for sale: Charlie O's restaurant on Dolores, which has been on the market for some time and is now Bowen's listing; Song of the Orient in the Plaza; and a 200 sq. ft. space at the Plaza presently occupied by sculptor Luis Antonio, who is leaving the area. The How To Do Anything Bookstore in the Lobos Courtyard is also still available.

WANT TO SELL A BUSINESS?

• . . . And there are people looking for special business opportunities in Carmel. Merit McBride's Bob Franco has a client who is looking for a small space (750-1,000 sq. ft.) on or close by Ocean Avenue. Objective: to open a bookstore for children.

• Someone else is looking for a retail shop on or near Ocean Avenue: "Trisha," who has a quilt shop on Union Street in San Francisco, would like to be a Carmel businesswoman, too.

• Then there's Stan Finkelstein, a man who has a concept for a business in Carmel and is looking for a local person to help him bring it into being.

A restaurant owner in East Hampton, New York, and for years a dentist (also a writer for trade magazines), the versatile Finkelstein would like to see a very special place established here; he would like to offer fresh pasta and things that go well with it for customers to take home to cook. He didn't want to share all the details of his plan at this stage of its development but he did say he doesn't see anything like it in the area; he believes it would meet a real need.

A Carmel-lover, Finkelstein would like to live here. Already aware of the city's restrictions on certain types of business, he knows that he may have to settle for some other Peninsula location.

If you are out there, pasta-lover and pasta-maker with a good personality and lots of enthusiasm, you can reach Stan at Box 2359, Carmel.

Supervisor Peters denies allegations th

By ROBERT MISKIMON

REPORTS of skullduggery on the Board of Supervisors are greatly exaggerated, says Fifth District Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley.

As a matter of fact, the five county supervisors agree much more often than they disagree and continue to take care of county business despite occasional friction, Peters believes.

In a wide-ranging interview with the Pine Cone/Outlook, Supervisor Peters brushed aside criticism of his handling of Local Coastal Programs, expressed a desire for strong growth controls in the Carmel Valley Master Plan, and said he enjoys the job of county supervisor.

Despite recent reports of infighting among supervisors, Peters said there is a great deal of harmony and cooperation on the Board of Supervisors.

Special report:

"If you look at the votes and what's going on, you'll see that the board is working unanimously on virtually every item," Peters said.

"There is some real give-and-take on positions, which is all very healthy. I would not say all members of the board are friends, or want to be friends. At times there is hostility and resentment over the issues.

"Whenever you have strong-willed people dealing with highly volatile issues and working very hard, there's bound to be tension and some resentment," Supervisor Peters said. "But the board functions very professionally and the county's business is getting done in an expeditious way.

"Something like 95 percent of the issues are decided unanimously. If we were all trying to do each other in, we would not have been able to deal with the complexities of something like the Local Coastal Programs." Peters said he suggested to Fourth District Supervisor Michal Moore that his colleague determine whether his leasing of an airplane from Larry Seeman — a consultant to the Pebble Beach Corp. — was a conflict of interest simply "to protect him."

"My entire involvement with Supervisor Moore's airplane rental was based on the fact it sounded to me like he might have a conflict," Peters said. "I chatted with the county counsel, and it appeared he (Moore) did. I had a private conversation with Michal and told him to consult with the Fair Political Practices Commission.

Monterey County Board of Supervisors, believes criticism of the coastal planning pro-

"He later told me he did, and that was the last time I talked with him about it. My involvement was designed to protect him."

Since then, Moore has continued to lease the airplane on the strength of a ruling by the county counsel's office that the practice does not constitute a conflict of interest.

SUPERVISOR PETERS brushed off questions about continued criticism that inadequate public involvement has been allowed in formulation of Local Coastal Programs for Carmel, Big Sur, and Del Monte Forest.

Those criticisms have come from people like Zad Leavy of Big Sur, a former member of the Central Coast Regional Coastal Commission; Rod Holmgren, spokesman for the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club; Ed Ramey, a member of the Carmel Area LCP Citizens Advisory Committee; Jean Bleick, chairwoman of the land use committee of the League of Women Voters; and others.

cess is a "dead issue" and says the supervisors work well together.

Why wasn't the public afforded more notification of meetings between Supervisor Peters and Coastal Commission staffers during which the shape of the revised LCPs was hammered out? And why wasn't the public invited to attend and participate in those meetings, as was done with the North Monterey County LCP?

"That's a dead issue," Peters asserted. "The Big Sur plan has been approved. Zad Leavy has polarized the community on several issues, not just the LCP. I don't want a dialogue on something that's not germane."

Mention of individual citizens who have criticized the LCP process as too secretive drew laughter from Peters.

Peters later suggested that Jane Bleick, chairwoman of the Monterey Peninsula chapter of the League of Women Voters, did not truly speak for that organization in a letter to the Board of Supervisors in which she questioned handling of the Del Monte Forest LCP.

Mrs. Bleick said Peters denied a League request that a meeting between Supervisors Peters and Moore, the Del Monte Forest Property Owners Association, and the Pebble

That board members are back-stabbing

Beach Corp. be open to the public. This denied the public the right to comment on the Peters/Moore draft LCP "before or during" its preparation, Mrs. Bleick said.

"The reason they (League) knew there was a meeting between supervisors and the homeowners is because we announced it at a public meeting," Peters said. "The League of Women Voters later asked us (supervisors) to speak, and we did so at a public meeting."

"We reviewed the entire process of public participation to explain the changes made in the meetings that we'd had. That was a meeting to tell everyone that what we had was no longer a (Del Monte Forest) homeowner plan, but a county plan."

Peters produced a copy of a Jan. 18 letter from the Big Sur LCP Citizens Advisory Committee on the proposed county conditions which addresses only one policy in the lengthy document, as evidence that public criticism had evaporated.

THE CHAIRMAN of that committee, Roger Newell, has been another vocal critic of the way in which the negotiations between the county and the Coastal Commission have been conducted.

The Citizens Advisory Committee, in its letter to the Board of Supervisors, recommended that the number of new visitor-serving units permitted in the Big Sur LCP be limited to 500 "based upon an acreage requirement per unit of undeveloped open space" and that the number of visitor-serving lodge units on any one site be limited to 35, instead of 60, as recommended in the revised LCP.

Both the Carmel area and Big Sur Local Coastal Programs are to be considered by the Coastal Commission when it meets today (March 4) at the Carmel Holiday Inn.

Peters said he hopes the Board of Supervisors can come up with some kind of compromise on county library funding to permit better service to outlying rural areas without doing serious damage to city libraries, such as the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel.

The Board of Supervisors has scheduled a March 23 hearing on a recommendation by consultant David Sabsay that the county reduce reimbursements to city libraries — such as Harrison Memorial Library — which provide services to residents of unincorporated areas. His proposed funding formula could chop $130,000 from the Carmel library budget.

"There are several areas where savings can be realized if the cities and the county work together," Peters said. "I would hate to see the county put in a major library at the mouth of the Valley to the detriment of the Carmel library."

"Any additional county facilities should complement the city library in Carmel. I favor strongly the proposal for automated circulation. But I see no reason to treat city boundaries as reality in terms of funding for library services."

"At this point I don't know what our options are. The status quo is not acceptable. I will not vote for not providing library services to rural areas."

Supervisor Peters said he sees a need for growth-controls in the Carmel Valley Master Plan, but isn't sure whether "trigger" mechanisms proposed by the city of Carmel and the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association would be appropriate.

The Board of Supervisors will continue its certification hearing on the court-ordered environmental impact report for the Master Plan on March 15. The county counsel is to advise the board whether the EIR must address those trigger mechanisms more fully.

"IF THE TRIGGER mechanisms are to be evaluated in an EIR, they must be considered mitigations for some defined impact," Peters said.

As proposed, the trigger mechanisms would require the county to halt construction in Carmel Valley when specific levels of air, water, noise and traffic pollution have been reached.

"With trigger mechanisms, you're really talking about alternative mitigations to those that are already there," Peters commented. "I will have to wait and see what the answer is on whether the EIR must address that."

"It's clear that we have to have some mechanisms for controlling cumulative development in the Valley. We have some mechanisms already in place that will do that. The water allocation system could be called a trigger mechanism; the air pollution control district has a defined rate for pollutants. Those are in-place mechanisms."

Peters was noncommittal about his political future — specifically whether he plans to run for reelection in 1984 or to seek higher office.

"I have no political plans, except to be a good supervisor," he said. "I have no plans at this point. I see no reason to worry about what I'll do three years from now."

Does he think discontent about the LCP process is a significant political liability?

"I don't have to run for reelection now, so I don't want to speculate about it. I like very much being a supervisor. I would think that when it gets down to the end of the term, people will look at my entire record."

"By then, we will have every area in the Fifth District with up-to-date general plans and LCPs; we will have a more sophisticated social services delivery system than we do now with more dependable funding; definite strides will have been made toward improving the management of our hospital and in eroding the negative cash flow."

How a county supervisor earns his $24,000

WHAT DOES a county supervisor do?

The textbook answer is, of course, that the supervisor represents the interests of the people in his or her district.

That means hours of sitting through board — and often boring — meetings, reading staff reports, listening to citizens and trying to balance the interests of disparate groups and individuals.

It's a demanding job, but not one undertaken solely for the betterment of society. Monterey County supervisors are paid an annual salary of $23,172, to which are added some $600 in fringe benefits, including county health, dental, and optical insurance coverage. By county ordinance, the position of supervisor is designated a part-time job.

Supervisors are also entitled to an additional $100 monthly benefit allowance, which they can use in a variety of ways — for life insurance, pension, or expanded insurance coverage for family members.

They may receive a flat monthly gasoline mileage allowance of $150 or reimbursement for use of their own car at the rate of 26 cents per mile. Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley receives the flat $150 monthly car allowance.

In addition, supervisors are entitled to the services of a full-time aide, whose salary ranges from $17,136 to $21,240 per year. Supervisors' aides also are entitled to the same health, dental, and optical insurance benefits as supervisors, as well as a car allowance.

Both supervisors and their aides are reimbursed for travel and other out-of-pocket expenses when they travel on county business. Supervisors may take time off from their duties whenever they choose, and their aides are entitled to regular county employees' vacation periods.

Supervisors may use county motor pool vehicles, when they are available, for county business.

Fourth District Supervisor Michal Moore and Fifth District Supervisor use adjoining offices provided rent-free in the Monterey County Courthouse at 1200 Aquajito Rd. in Monterey, and share the services of a county clerk-typist, whose salary range is $935 to $1,158 per month. The supervisors' clerk also receives full health, dental and optical insurance coverage.

STEVE SLADE, a former real estate investment counselor in Salinas, has been Supervisor Peters' aide since Peters was elected in 1980. Since 1980, his real estate license has been inactive.

Slade says he works between 50 to 55 hours per week on county business, and his boss "puts in more than 60 hours a week in a part-time job."

"I keep a record of the hours I spend in excess of 40 a week because I'm entitled to compensatory time off," Slade said. "But I haven't taken any of that time yet. I spend half of my day on the telephone dealing with constituents, and I monitor a lot of meetings for Bill, like the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association."

Since the Fifth District was reapportioned last fall, it now encompasses the Big Sur coast, Carmel Valley, Fort Ord, and the Corral de Tierra area on Highway 68. "It's enormous," Slade says.

"Bill puts in between eight to 10 hours over any given weekend just reading stuff from the board meetings," Slade said. "You should see what he takes out of here to study at home. He's also chairman of LAFCO (Local Agency Formation Commission), and he's on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and the legislative committee of the Board of Supervisors.

"He works eight hours a day, plus a minimum of two night meetings a week."

Slade said he feels the job of supervisor's aide is very important because it enables the supervisor to maintain touch with citizens, and to respond to their needs.

"The public has the right to believe their supervisor sees or hears everything they say," Slade said. "That's why a supervisor has an aide. There's many things I can handle that free Bill for other things — a problem with a parking ticket, getting public works to do something — it just goes on and on and on."

Third District Supervisor Dusan Petrovic of King City is the only one of the five supervisors who does not have an aide. Petrovic manages with a secretary and a space in the Monterey County office building in King City.

"I don't need an aide," Petrovic said. "I just need somebody to take dictation and to answer the phone. If I want to know what's going on at a meeting, I go myself."

Does he think supervisors should have full-time aides?

"Absolutely not," Supervisor Petrovic responded. "My district takes in more than two-thirds of the county and I don't need one. The supervisors better attend the meetings and learn what's going on for themselves." (R.M.)

BIG SUR Local Coastal Program, which has been revised through negotiations between Supervisor Peters and Coastal Commission staff, goes before the commission today (March 4) for a progress report. Both Supervisors William Peters and Michal Moore have been criticized for their handling of the county's coastal plans. (Roger Fremier photo).

Commission weighs Carmel LCP

THE COASTAL COMMISSION is scheduled to decide today (March 4) whether to certify the Carmel area Local Coastal Program with numerous modifications.

The commission agenda also includes consideration of a progress report on revision of the Big Sur LCP to conform with recommended state conditions.

The Coastal Commission scheduled its meeting to start at 9 a.m. at the Carmel Holiday Inn. Public comments will be permitted on both coastal plans.

The commission will consider a coastal staff report with recommendations for revision of the LCP and a county position paper submitted by the Board of Supervisors. The LCP originally submitted by Monterey County was rejected by the commission Sept. 3.

The county position conflicts with some crucial recommendations by the coastal staff. One difference concerns development on the eastern 134 acres of the Odello Ranch.

The coastal staff has recommended retention of prime agricultural designation for most of that property, with the exception of a nine-acre, non-productive "blister" area. The Coastal Commission staff recommended development density of six units per acre on the blister (54 units).

The county, on the other hand, wants to use the blister area — as well as a considerable portion of the remainder of the Odello east property — for flooding to protect developed areas on the north side of the Carmel River. In exchange for flood rights from the Odellos, the county would like to permit development of up to 162 residential units on the southern fringe of the Odello property, near the Palo Corona foothills.

The county would also like to permit development of a farmer's market and restaurant adjacent to Highway 1 on the Odello east property.

The county and the Coastal Commission staff also disagree over public access to Malpasos Beach.

The coastal staff has recommended provision of public access to and along Malpasos and Yankee beaches as a condition of future development permits in those areas.

But the Board of Supervisors, in a Feb. 11 letter to the Coastal Commission, expressed its "strong opposition" to public access to Malpasos Creek Beach.

"Not only is this area a small, rocky pocket beach with little potential for recreational use, it is also surrounded by residential development and is in close proximity to the water supply serving Carmel Riviera and Otter Cove and is therefore inappropriate for public use," the supervisors' indicated.

"The board has not had adequate time to evaluate all of coastal staff's recommended conditions; in particular it has not had time to specifically evaluate and respond to all recommendations on riparian habitat standards."

"THE BOARD'S major concerns relate to coastal staff's recommendations on the location and intensity of development, the reservation of highway capacity and the capacity of other public services for coastal priority uses, and the provision of public access."

Conspicuously absent from the staff report and from the county position paper is any specific explanation of a proposed transfer of development credit system, although a TDC system had been suggested for both the Carmel and Big Sur coastal plans.

The coastal staff recommends revision of the LCP to prohibit visitor-serving facilities on the 10-acre Portola Corp. property, between the Odello west property and Carmel Meadows. The staff now recommends a density on that site compatible with surrounding residential density.

The Portola Corp. site had been suggested as a possible "receiver" area for TDC credits from Big Sur.

A suggestion that the 446-acre Sawyer Property be permitted an increased density to be used as a receiver site for density credits purchased elsewhere should be dealt with by the

THIS LEVEE on the south side of the Carmel River, which protects the eastern Odello property, would be lowered to permit flooding under a request in the Carmel LCP by Monterey County. The county wants to county in its TDC system, the coastal staff says.

In its position paper, the Board of Supervisors "rejects the (coastal staff) recommendation to delete a density increase for the Sawyer property." The county proposal is for one unit per 20 acres for 436 acres of the Sawyer property instead of 16 units clustered on the western 30 acres, as recommended by the Coastal Commission staff.

The coastal staff recommends a total increase in residential units south of the Carmel River of between 513 to 587, which would increase the total number of units to somewhere between 1,015 and 1,089.

In a report on the Big Sur LCP, Coastal Commission District Director Ed Brown defended the procedures used by county and state officials to revise the plan, and called for more information on the controversial transfer of development credit system.

Involved in those discussions to revise the plan have been Coastal Commissioners Naomi Schwartz and John Corbet; coastal staffers Ed Brown and Lee Otter; and Monterey County Supervisors Michal Moore and William Peters.

CITIZENS HAVE charged that those negotiations did not provide sufficient public participation and have criticized the meetings for their element of secrecy.

"The meetings between the representatives of the Coastal Commission subcommittee and the county representatives were conducted as informal discussions," Brown informed the Coastal Commission in his report.

"To facilitate the process and to encourage frankness, only the commission and county personnel were present. Because there is already a commission-approved Big Sur give the Odellos the right to increased development density in exchange for flood rights, but the Coastal Commission staff disagrees, and wants development only on a nine-acre "blister" area.

LCP, the discussions were focused entirely upon the conditions and not any other aspect of the LCP."

Once the proposed revisions are resubmitted to the Coastal Commission, they will again be subject to staff review, analysis, and recommendation, Brown said. There will be more opportunity for public review and comment.

"Opportunity for full public involvement is provided by both the Board of Supervisors' hearings and by any Coastal Commission hearings which may be scheduled," Brown stated. "Both LCP resubmittals and any changes in the conditions of certification are subject to public hearings before the commission."

The transfer of development credit system under formulation by Supervisor Michal Moore — once it is completed and incorporated into the Big Sur LCP — will be "a fundamental part" of the plan, Brown reported. "Some aspects of the TDC program could require modification of the LCP — identification of receiving areas for transferred credits, fractional credits granted in areas with identified resource-capacity constraints, relationship between residential credits and inn unit credits."

Another question which needs to be resolved in the Big Sur plan is the total number of permitted visitor-serving units, and the relationship of the TDC policy to that number, Brown indicated.

On one page of the revised conditions proposed by the county, 500 new inn units would be permitted. Yet on another page, "a ceiling of 750 new visitor-serving units (is proposed) in conjunction with the TDC program," Brown noted.

"What limits should be placed on hotel-motel development?" Brown asks.

Friends of the Library selects new officers

Billwiller, secretary; Jack Billwiller, vice president; and Martha Keeney, treasurer. George White, president of the Tor House Foundation (right), gave a talk to the Friends on the life and poetry of Robinson Jeffers.

Little League signups set

Carmel Valley Little League sign-up nights are tonight, Thursday, March 4 at Carmelo School and Tuesday, March 9 at Tularcitos School. Registration begins at 7:30 p.m. both nights. An orientation at 7 p.m. precedes the Tularcitos sign-up.

"All children between the ages of 8 and 12 are invited to join Little League," says player agent Glenn Nolte.

A parent should accompany each child to the sign-ups. Birth certificates are necessary for first-year registrants. The cost to register is $16 per child.

Carmel Valley Little League major league try-outs are scheduled Saturday, March 13 and 20, at 11 a.m.

"All Little Leaguers aged 9 and older not already on a major league team are expected to try out," says Glenn Nolte, league player agent.

Late registration will also be accepted at the try-outs, at the Little League Park on Paso Hondo Road in Carmel Valley Village.

For further information on Little League, phone Nolte at 659-4387.

Sierra Club plans hike

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club has planned a nature hike to Pine Mountain for Sunday, March 7.

Reservations must be made for this all-day hike from Big Basin Headquarters to the summit of Pine Mountain.

For reservations, phone Dave Bockman 426-9345.

The Sierra Club has scheduled four Flood Damage Work Days to work on some of the areas hit hardest by the January flood in the State Parks in the Santa Cruz Mountains. The dates are Saturday, March 6; Saturday and Sunday, March 13 and 14; and Sunday March 21.

Pine Whispers Equine 35th birthday lunch at Pebble Beach

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

EQUINE TO CELEBRATE BIG 35TH

Not every horse gets feted to a birthday bash, but then, Sir Stormily isn't just any old horse, you know. He has many Homo sapiens friends who are absolutely thrilled with the idea of attending his 35th birthday party.

The el-fresco affair is planned at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center on March 11 from 4 p.m. to sunset. Naturally Storm's owner, Mellon Hunton, is taking care of such details as mailing invitations and preparing a menu which will include ham pate, cucumbers stuffed with chicken salad and cherry tomatoes, cheeses and other good things including a hot-mulled wine which will take Mellon three days to prepare.

And, of course, there will be champagne and birthday cake — carrot cake?

Storm, considered a handsome fellow by many of his friends, will be "dressed" for the gala by his friend, Kathy Hittner, who plans to weave fresh spring flowers through his mane and tail. Jet black with a white star on his face, Storm is a registered Standardbred.

Mellon, who has owned Storm for 18 years, says that he is highly schooled and has won many ribbons in equitation. "He's high strung and a bit hard to ride," said Mellon, adding that she knows "which buttons to push."

Before coming to this area seven years ago, Mellon owned a ranch in Sonoma called "Swim and Saddle Club." She spent a lot of time riding her three horses and gave riding lessons. Mellon says she became interested in horses rather late in life but that fact hasn't dampened either her spirits or her ability. She wrote a book called The Horse on assignment for Equus magazine.

Those planning to celebrate with Storm are very much a part of the "horsey set" and include Jean Paillard, the French dressage master and his wife, Peggy.

Arriving from San Juan Bautista will be Mrs. Mary Davies, J. Ashton (Jeff) Moore (dressage trainer), and Elizabeth Friedlander Searle.

A protege of Monsieur Paillard, Janet Garwood of Carmel Valley, will also be there as will veterinarians Dr. and Mrs. Gary Deter, and Dr. and Mrs. Kent Fowler.

Jay and Abby Foss are also planning to attend the gala, and if you have any interest in horses you already know that Abby is director of the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center.

Arriving from Sonoma will be Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hutton. Mrs. Hutton is a director of the National Vaulting Team operated by Jeff Moore and Liz Searle.

Arriving from Nevada will be Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lewis and Greg and Vicki Smith. Vicki is a dressage trainer.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Public Hearings on disposition of Carmelo School, Woods School, and the Central Office of the Carmel Unified School District will be held at Carmel School Library on Carmel Valley Road at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 8th, 1982 and in the Woods School Cafeteria on Dolores and 1st St., Carmel on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. March 18, 1982.

The Pebble Beach gang will include Mr. and Mrs. Frank Janson, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Sergy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snyder, Miss Quinn Shope, Mr. and Mrs. Ivon Ulrey, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tacker, Mr. and Mrs. Andre Nizet, Miss Cindy Noel and Miss Kathryn Hittner.

Storm has certainly enjoyed the good life, as his only owner other than Mellon was John Farley, who owns the ranch in Inverness where Storm was born on March 9, 1947.

A toast to the good life, Storm!

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT COMMITTEE HOSTS WELCOME PARTY FOR STUDENTS

Thirty-five students from various countries around the world who are attending Monterey Peninsula College this semester were recently hosted to a welcome party at the Carmel home of Fred and Pauline Stanley. The party was sponsored by the MPC International Student Board Committee, of which Mrs. Stanley is president. Also welcoming the students to the gala was Ed Devlin, advisor to the international students at MPC.

The board functions much like a hospitality committee, welcoming the students and helping in any way possible. One very special lady who has been like a godmother to many of the students over the past ten years is Mrs. Amy Geraghty, who will soon celebrate her 90th birthday.

Wei Ho of Peking, China, is student representative for the international student body.

The board has been in operation for 24 years. Current members are Mr. and Mrs. Jad Katrib, Mr. Aidir Sani, Dr. Kamil Said, Dr. Stevens Tucker, Ken White, Mrs. Gladys Al'haik, Mrs. Virginia Burk, Frank Adams, Mrs. Ruth Harris, Mrs. Evelyn McCoy, Mrs. MacElliott Seldner, Mrs. Lucie Heymann, Machel Nasr, Mrs. Maryann Moezzi, Ms. Elizabeth Henderson, Mrs. Neva Snell and Barbara-Lea Johnson.

Guests attending the party included MPC President Max Tadlock and his wife, and Dean of Students Jack Bessire and his wife.

The pot-luck dinner was prepared by members of the board.

SIX RLS NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLARSHIP FINALISTS NAMED

Six seniors at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach have been named finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition.

The finalists are John D. Bradley and Mark W. Modrall of Carmel; James R. Potochny and Susan M. Steffes of Monterey; Sean K. Wilkinson of Watsonville and Steven C. Zahm of Pebble Beach.

These six finalists will now be considered for at least 1,500 National Merit $1,000 Scholarships and 3,500 four-year Merit Scholarships to be awarded this spring.

JULIA A. MARTIN COMPLETES AIR FORCE BASIC TRAINING

Congratulations to Airman Julia A. Martin, who has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. She is the daughter of Carmel C. Martin of Carmel.

The airman, who will remain at Lackland for specialized training in the communications-electronics field, studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Completion of this training earned Julia credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Julia is a 1979 graduate of Verde Valley School, Sedona, Arizona.

United of Omaha in Carmel, has been awarded President's Circle honors by two Mutual of Omaha Companies for 1981. This year's award represents the fifth time Estassi has been recognized by one or more of the Mutual of Omaha Companies.

The award, the highest distinction given by Mutual and its affiliates, honors individuals and their agencies for outstanding achievements.

Estassi is one of only six associates honored this year by both Mutual of Omaha and United of Omaha. United is Mutual's principal life insurance affiliate.

LOCAL PANHELLENIC CELEBRATES 28TH ANNIVERSARY

The local chapter of Panhellenic recently celebrated its 28th anniversary with a Valentine's Day party at Del Mesa Carmel. Outgoing president Rosamund Castle, and her husband, Maurice, will move to Piedmont this month. The couple plans to retain membership at the Beach Club and will be frequent visitors to the area.

John Peacock of Carmel chaired the luncheon. He was assisted by Winifred Carr, Marjorie Fletcher, Pauline Hites and Lucille Threikeld.

Trustees to hold hearing on surplus school property

THE CARMEL Unified School District Board of Education will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m., Monday, March 8 at Carmelo School on the disposition of surplus properties.

The properties which the district no longer needs include the Carmel Woods and Carmelo School sites, plus central office facilities owned by the district.

The Advisory Committee on Surplus Property has studied possible uses of the sites and recommends these alternatives for consideration:

CARMELO SCHOOL SITE (approx. 12.42 acres with 13,000 sq. ft. of building)

- Divide the property. Lease the front half, land and buildings for use by a private school, church organization, hospital, executive office (where managerial functions only are carried on), clinics, research laboratories or professional center (legal, architectural, medical, dental).
- Sell the back half for potential development of up to three two-acre individual single family home sites.
- Estimated yearly lease value — front half — $80,000. Estimated market value — back half — $300,000.
- Lease entire land and buildings for use as indicated above. Estimated yearly lease value — $100,000.
- Sell entire property (all 12.42 acres) for potential development of up to six two-acre individual single family home sites. Estimated market value — $500,000.
- Relocate Central Office functions and Carmel Valley High School into Carmelo buildings. Sell back half for potential development.

- Maintain back half of property as is for use by Carmel Valley High School. Sell or lease front half.

WOODS SCHOOL SITE (approx. 2.8 acres with 16,850 sq. ft. of buildings)

- Sell or lease the land and buildings for potential development of up to nine individual single family home sites, on average each larger than the current neighboring 40' x 100' home lot sites. Estimated market value — $700,000.
- By law, the property could be used for limited executive office space or professional center, but the Committee does not recommend such use.
- Relocate Central Office functions or Carmel Valley High School to Woods School site.

CENTRAL OFFICE (7,500 sq. ft. of building with adjacent parking for 24 cars)

- Lease land and building for use by a private school, church organization, hospital, executive offices (where managerial functions only are carried on), clinics, research laboratories or professional center (legal, architectural, medical, dental).
 - Estimated yearly lease value — $90,000
 - Retain as is for Carmel Unified School District use.
 - Sell land and building, but the Committee does not recommend this.
- The public is invited to attend the hearing and to comment.

Carmel wrestlers receive awards

Carmel High School senior matman Ward Crane received the most valuable wrestler and varsity high point awards at the annual wrestling team banquet attended by Congressman Leon Panetta and his wife, Sylvia, Feb. 27.

Crane set a school record during the wrestling season with 255 points. The old record was set in 1973 when Mike Brock tallied 231. Crane was also inducted into the Superkings Club — an honor reserved for matmen who score more than 200 points in a season.

Fellow wrestlers Mike Thomas, with 247 points, and Bobby Walthour, with 239 points, also topped the old point record for CHS. They were also inducted into the Superkings Club.

Other awards presented by coaches Bob Walthour and Bob Brooks went to: Jack Ingram, varsity most improved; Fred Lind and Carmelo Panetta, most inspirational; Bobby Walthour, most dedicated; Mike Thomas, most promising; Mike White, JV most valuable; and Sal Orozco, JV most improved.

The varsity Padres tied for first place in the Mission Trail Athletic League with North Monterey County and Santa Cruz. Carmel was edged out of first place in the Northern Conference League Tournament Championships by Santa Cruz.

Carmel High School Principal Marsha Kading also presented a special varsity "Block C" wrestling letter to Congressman Panetta.

CVPOA weighs two projects

THE CARMEL Valley Property Owners Association board of directors will decide whether to give its blessings to two major development proposals March 10.

CVPOA directors will meet at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 10 at the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Station.

Developer Bill Cucask will outline his plans for the 220-unit La Cuesta subdivision on 500 acres designated "environmentally sensitive" by the county planning department.

The La Cuesta development would be located four miles east of Highway 1, immediately west of Vista Nadura, on the north side of Carmel Valley Road.

The board of directors will also consider the proposed 562-acre Canada Segunda subdivision, where developer Skip Marquard hopes to develop 173 residential parcels for sale.

Marquard presented details of his proposal to the CVPOA several months ago, but the board took no position on the project at that time, said president Richard Dalsemer.

In both projects, the developers have offered to donate large tracts of land to parks or open space use. The Canada Segunda project envisions donation of 348 acres of a 900-acre parcel to be dedicated to Jacks Peak Park.

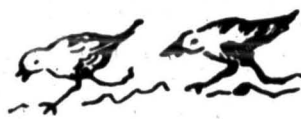

Developers of the La Cuesta project also have offered to donate a sizeable portion of the land to the Big Sur Land Trust for preservation as open space, Dalsemer said.

"They both want to know whether the CVPOA feels there's anything standing in the way of development of the properties," Dalsemer said.

BOB WEILAND was enthusiastically received when he gave a fitness demonstration for Carmel High School students recently. (Photo by Aileen Kelly).

High school receives a special visit from a special person

By MARCUS ARANA

On Thursday, Feb. 18, all of the students and faculty of Carmel High School attended an assembly in the high school gym. They received a very special treat in Bob Weiland, a promising major league baseball pitcher who lost both of his legs in Vietnam. He talked about goals and objectives.

Weiland didn't want people to feel sorry for him after his accident, so he became involved in physical fitness and nutrition. With 12 years of hard work Weiland has become a four-time world powerlifting champion in the bench press. He holds the world record for a lift of 303 lbs. for a man who weighs 122 lbs.

He competed with able-bodied men. Weiland was banned from competing in future weight-lifting events by the Amateur Athletic Union because he did not wear shoes and have his feet on the floor when he lifted the weight.

Weiland has appeared on the "Richard Simmons Show" and ABC's "That's Incredible." He also has appeared in the movie "The Champion." Weiland attempted a world record lift in front of the student body in the packed gym. This record was for men ages 35 and over who weigh between 139-145 lbs. He was able to lift 315 lbs. — enough to break the record and receive a standing ovation.

The former Cal State at Los Angeles fitness and flexibility coach has planned a "Spirit of America" walk. He plans to leave Los Angeles April 14 and walk on his hands all the way to Jacksonville, Fla.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Marcus Arana is a senior at Carmel High School. He wrote this story as an assignment in Bob Walsh's journalism class and earned an A- for his efforts.

Deaths

Edward Soberanes

Edward P. Soberanes of Carmel Valley, a member of an old California family, died Feb. 22 at Community Hospital after a period of failing health. He was 85.

Born Dec. 25, 1896, on the Soberanes' Soledad Mission land grant, Mr. Soberanes was a direct descendant of Jose Maria Soberanes, a Spanish soldier who served in the 1769 and 1770 Portola expeditions to Monterey, the 1772 Fages expedition to San Francisco Bay and the 1776 DeAnza exploration of the San Francisco area.

Mr. Soberanes served in World War I and later joined the state Division of Highways as an equipment operator, helping to build the Monterey County coast highway in the years 1926-37. He moved to Carmel in 1926.

Mr. Soberanes retired in 1958 from the Highway Department after 34 years. He was a member of Carmel Mission Basilica and had served as an usher for more than 40 years.

He is survived by his son, Edward L. Soberanes of Carmel Valley, and his sisters Juanita Waters and Julia Garcia, both of King City.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested spiritual bouquets or memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Catherine McMahan

Catherine L. McMahan died Feb. 23 in her home in Pebble Beach after a brief illness. She was 65.

Ruth Dutton

Ruth Helen Dutton died Feb. 6 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 83. She was a Carmel resident for 30 years.

Mrs. Dutton was born July 21, 1898, in Indiana. She and her husband, George Bradford Dutton, moved to Carmel in 1952. Mr. Dutton died in 1963.

The Duttons owned Jacks Peak until 1960 when they sold the peak property to public agencies with the provision the area became a park. It is now Jacks Peak Regional Park.

Cremation was held at Little Chapel-by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove.

Richard Larson

Richard E. Larson died Feb. 21 at his Carmel home following a period of failing health. He was 35.

Born Aug. 14, 1946, in Hartford, Conn., he was a Carmel resident for the past 12 years.

Mr. Larson received a masters degree in art from the University of Northern Colorado. He had presented numerous one-man shows in Carmel of copper sculpture, watercolors and oil paintings.

He was a past member and president of the Carmel Art Association.

Survivors include a sister, Ann E. Ertel of Costa Mesa; and three brothers, Don of Atlanta, Ga., and David and Robert, both of Denver, Colo.

The Paul Mortuary as in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested memorial contributions to the National Asthmatic Foundation, Denver, Colo.

Margaret DeGraf

Margaret S. DeGraf, a resident of Carmel Valley Manor, died Feb. 28 at the manor's medical center after a long illness.

Mrs. DeGraf was born Jan. 3, 1899, in San Rafael. She graduated from Mills College in Oakland in 1921. She had moved to the Monterey Peninsula 15 years ago from Paso Robles. Her husband, Gerald, died in 1976. She was a member of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula.

Mrs. DeGraf is survived by her sons, Col. William B. DeGraf of Alexandria, Va., and Donnell R. DeGraf of Walnut Creek; sisters, Mrs. E.L. Covey of San Francisco, Miss Dorothy M. Sharp of Walnut Creek and Miss Evelyn B. Sharp of Carmel; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula are preferred by the family.

Christian Scientist lecturer to speak on 'Science of Possible'

C. Earle Armstrong, member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will speak at noon, Monday, March 8 at the First Church of Christ, Scientist. He will lecture on Christian Science: The Science of the Possible.

Armstrong has been in the public practice of Christian Science healing for many years. As a member of his church board of lectureship, he travels widely explaining that activity. During the course of his lecture, Armstrong cites three examples of how lives, spiritually uplifted, are helped through times of challenge.

Armstrong finds fundamental Christian truths relating to God as effective today as they were in Jesus's time. His lecture points out that prayer in the manner of Jesus's teachings opens thought to an expectancy of good, to a deeper understanding of God and to healing.

The lecture is open to the public without charge. The First Church of Christ, Scientist is on Monte Verde and Fifth in Carmel.

For further information, phone 625-2794.

Landslides are 'unlikely' in Carmel Valley

LANDSLIDES and mudflows are less likely to occur in Carmel Valley than in some other rain-soaked areas of Northern California.

That's because of a different soil composition in Carmel Valley than in places like Santa Cruz County, where mudflows have recently devastated some residential areas, says Steve Borossay, chief engineer with the Monterey County Building Department.

"I don't know of any significant erosion problems in Carmel Valley associated with the rains," Borossay said. "We've had a few minor erosion problems, but our new erosion control ordinance should take care of them."

"Landslide potential has to do with the type of soil strata. In Santa Cruz you've got very sandy soil. In Carmel Valley we've got Carmel chalk rock and decomposed granite, so the absorption into the soil is less. Landslides will occur when you've got saturation of the soil."

The State Office of Emergency Services recently advised the Monterey County Board of Supervisors of "the potential for continued serious damage" to life and property throughout Northern California from erosion caused by heavy rain storms.

"With sufficiently intense rainfall, mudflows and shallow-failure and slips could reoccur," Office of Emergency Services Director Alex Cunningham said in a letter to supervisors. "There exists the possibility of deep-seated landslides occurring within your area the remainder of this winter and throughout the summer."

Danger signs for which residents in landslide-prone steep areas should be alert, as defined by the U.S. Geological Survey, include:

- Doors or windows that stick or jam for the first time.
- New cracks in plaster, tile, brickwork, or foundations.
- Outside walls, walks, or stairs pulling away from the building.
- Slowly developing and widening cracks in the ground or paved areas.
- Breakage of underground utility lines.
- Leakage from swimming pools.
- Movement or tilting of fences, retaining walls, utility poles or trees.

• New water seeps or bulging of the ground at the base of slopes.

"Usually problems develop on existing building sites where drainage is inadequate," Borossay indicated. "Residents should look at their backyards and paths to see if there is adequate drainage. If they have any questions they can contact the county building department."

Recently-enacted county grading ordinances require site engineering of buildings in erosion-prone areas.

CHRONIC PAIN

If you are the unfortunate victim of chronic pain, or one of those told you will just have to learn to live with aches and pains...

Clinical studies indicate that nothing could be further from the truth. Most victims of pain could be helped if they were less willing to accept pain on a permanent basis. Dramatic results are now achieved without the use of conventional drugs or surgery.

Gallery debuts with exhibit of works by Whistler

Billingsgate, an original etching dated and signed by James McNeill Whistler in 1859, will be shown in an exhibition of lithographs and etchings by Whistler opening Saturday.

March 6 at the Pasquale Iannetti Art Gallery on Sixth between Mission and San Carlos, Carmel. Whistler was instrumental in reviving interest in the mediums of etching and lithography during the 1860s and 1870s. Pasquale Iannetti Gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

An outstanding exhibit of original etchings and lithographs by James McNeill Whistler will be presented Saturday, March 6 through Sunday, April 4 to commemorate the opening of the Pasquale Iannetti Art Gallery in Carmel.

A private reception for invited guests and the press will be given from 6-9 p.m. Friday, March 5.

Pasquale Iannetti, the founder of galleries in San Francisco and Carmel, is listed in Who's Who in American Art. An art dealer, collector and appraiser, Iannetti is also an increasingly popular lecturer and radio and television guest commentator on the subjects of collecting fine prints and art forgeries.

Carrie Curtis, director and curator of the Carmel gallery, has experience in the field of Old Masters. Most knowledgeable in her field, her expertise and enthusiasm is refreshing and educational to gallery visitors.

Whistler (1834-1903) was one of American's most prominent printmakers of the 19th century. He was instrumental in reviving interest in the mediums of etching and lithography during the 1860s and 1870s. As a forerunner of the modern movement, Whistler fully endorsed the philosophy of "art for art's sake."

Whistler's lithographs and etchings are priced from $550 to $8,000. It took Iannetti a year to locate and buy the Whistler collection. "I wanted to get as near a complete sampling of Whistler's graphics career as I could," said Iannetti. One rare find was the Sketches of the Coast Survey Plate, done in 1854 when Whistler worked as a mapmaker for the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. The etching is believed to be the first done by Whistler. The man's impressive talents in the delicate shadings of the coastal hills are evident even at that early stage of his life.

An artist of the most refined sensibility, Whistler was a tone poet whose art suggests a mood or captures a fleeting impression rather than a fixed reality. The poetry of Whistler's art and soul is revealed in his works.

The Pasquale Iannetti Gallery, located at Sixth and Mission, Carmel, is open 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon-5 p.m. Sunday.

Irish gala to be staged at Cherry Hall

The fifth Irish Gala production, Unseen Hosts — Irish Gods, Devils & Daimons, will open at 8 p.m. Friday, March 5 in Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

Adapted and directed by Dan Gotch, the production is based on the concept of the storyteller — shanachie in Gaelic — who delights, enchants and instructs his listeners with a wide range of tales. Dramatizations include tales drawn from the writings of Frank O'Connor, James Joyce, Lord Dunsany and W.B. Yeats.

Hosts explores the relationship between the Irish and their gods — Christian,

Catholic and pagan — as well as the supernatural world of faeries, ghosts and myths. These hosts are seen through comic vignettes of first confessions, Christmas dinners and breaking into heaven. Irish myth and insanity over lost love, add tragic touches to the production.

Music featured in Unseen Hosts is played on recorders by Jim Poggi and Sue Putnam. It ranges from traditional Irish tunes to Turlock O'Carolan to Gregorian Chants.

Local talents Richard Boynton, Marji Eldridge, Sue Putnam and Dick Vrelland each play a variety of roles, ranging in ages.

Unseen Hosts — Irish Gods, Devils & Daimons — will be staged Friday and Saturday, March 5-6, and March 12-13; and Wednesday, March 17. Admission is $3.

For further information, phone 624-7491.

Take an armchair visit to the circus

The Oscar Winners' Film Festival presents the 1952 Academy Award-winning film The Greatest Show on Earth at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 9 in the Sunset Theater, Carmel.

A splendiferous production of circus life, The Greatest Show on Earth stars Betty Hutton, Cornel Wilde, Charlton Heston, Dorothy Lamour and James Stewart. Included in the film are many amusing guest appearances by top stars in bit roles and dazzling camerawork.

Admission is $2. For further information, phone 624-3996.

Explorama will travel on Mediterranean Odyssey

Explorama, the popular travel adventure series, will present Mediterranean Odyssey, a film exploring the lands which surround the Mediterranean Sea, Thursday and Friday, March 11 and 12 in Sunset Theater, Carmel.

"The Mediterranean is a world in itself," according to film producer Thayer Soule. "Its people have shaped the history of the whole planet — Alexander, Jesus, Caesar, Mohammed and hosts of kings, emperors, sultans and pharaohs. No region on earth is so filled with historic meaning, cultural significance and romantic tradition."

Soule, one of the world's most traveled men, will be present to narrate Mediterranean Odyssey, his latest film. He has been producing films since 1936. For 20 years Soule was productions assistant to the late Burton Holmes, the man who coined the phrase "travelogue."

Mediterranean Odyssey follows the path of Ulysses and other Mediterranean explorers, visiting areas they visited hundreds of years ago. The delights of Venice open the film. Here viewers board a ship and travel along the coast of Yugoslavia.

A visit to Italy includes scenes of Naples, the ruins of the Roman city Pompeii, Sorrento, Amalfi Drive and the Island of Capri.

Leaving Italy, the tour continues to Greece with a tour of the classic city of Athens, Delphi and the Corinth Canal. Viewers are next treated to a scenic cruise through the Greek islands of Santorini, Crete, Mykonos and Rhodes.

The sequence in Istanbul shows the Blue Mosque, Hagia Sofia and the Topkapi Museum; and St. Paul's ancient site of Ephesus in Turkey is also explored.

The Mediterranean country explored next is Egypt with a look at the treasures of Tutankhamen, the Pyramids of Giza, the Temples at Luxor and Karnack. Jerusalem, the Sea of Galilee and Bethlehem are highlights of the Israel sequence.

Mediterranean Odyssey will be shown at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, March 11 and at 2:30 and 8:15 p.m. Friday, March 12.

Tickets are $5.25. They are available at Abinante Music Store, Monterey or through the Explorama Office, 701 Sutter St., San Francisco, CA 94109. For credit card reservations, phone 1-415-771-4733.

THE ISLAND OF SAN GIORGIO MAGGIORE part of the magic of Venice, Italy is explored in Mediterranean Odyssey, a film presented by Explorama, the popular travel-adventure series. Film producer Thayer Soule will be present to narrate his film which traces the footsteps of Ulysses and visits Venice, Yugoslavia, Naples, Capri, Athens, Delphi, Istanbul, Jerusalem, Cairo and the Greek islands. Mediterranean Odyssey will be shown at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, March 11 and at 2:30 and 8:15 p.m. Friday, March 12 in Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Film review:A portrait of our passions

By LISA JENSEN

Ragtime, the last and best of the holiday releases to play the Monterey Peninsula, is quite simply a great American movie. Czech director Milos Forman (who just missed greatness in his previous American films, Taking Off, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and Hair) has shaped E.L. Doctorow's novel into a vibrant and passionate vision of America in all her tragicomic contradictions.

Sprawling yet minutely detailed, Ragtime captures the historical moment when our country hovered between innocence and sophistication, energy and malaise, dream and nightmare. It's 1906, and New York is the center of a culture in transition.

Millions of immigrants are arriving daily and the news is full of brash American success stories, from J.P. Morgan, President Teddy Roosevelt to Harry Houdini and Henry Ford. Booker T. Washington is fighting for dignity for the black man, and the automobile is the new status symbol.

The nation is titillated by the sensational murder of architect Sanford White (author Norman Mailer, in his film debut) by deranged young millionaire Harry K. Thaw (Robert Joy) in a fit of jealousy over Thaw's bride, the famous ex-chorus girl Evelyn Nesbit (Elizabeth McGovern). The metaphor for all this socio-cultural ferment is ragtime, the impudent new music born in urban poverty and polished in the swank nightclubs of Harlem.

Michael Weller's script skillfully weaves fiction through this dazzling historical tapestry. An upper-middle-class fireworks manufacturer, identified only as Father (James Olson), is chagrined when his wife, the compassionate but pragmatic Mother (Mary Steenburgen) takes in an unwed young black mother, Sarah (Debbie Allen). Mother's intense, restless Younger Brother (Brad Dourif) has gone to the city to woo Nesbit, whose husband has been shipped off to an insane asylum.

Meanwhile, the father of Sarah's child, Coalhouse Walker Jr. (Howard E. Rollins), a ragtime pianist who has gone from silent movie accompanist to star attraction at a chic Harlem club, arrives to claim the family he can now support in style. But a chance encounter with some bored and dim-witted volunteer firemen, led by malicious Willie Conkling (Kenneth McMillan) leads to a series of tragedies that turn the genial Walker into a terrorist outlaw, shattering his dreams of happy prosperity.

Loss of innocence and disillusion are major themes in Ragtime. Unable to rise above his own lower class, Conkling rages against a black man who dares to rise above his. Abandoned by career-minded Nesbit after a brief, heady romance, Younger Brother rejects society by building bombs for Walker's gang. Well-meaning Father tries to live by traditional rules of genteel propriety but loses his family in the process. The film closes with Walker's betrayal, the ominous return to society of the wealthy, lunatic Thaw and the gathering storm clouds of World War I.

But Ragtime is also laced with guarded optimism and a wry, often jubilant sense of humor. A poor but enterprising street artist (Mandy Patinkin) who barely speaks English becomes a successful director in the booming motion picture industry, while soft-spoken Mother defies traditional barriers of class, race and sex to fight for the rights of her loved ones. Together, they establish a patchwork family unit in the last reel, a cautious note of hope to balance the film's darker side.

Any one of these vivid, intersecting stories could have been a complete movie in itself. The fact that Forman juggles them all into a complex, visionary whole in such engrossing detail and without missing a beat is miraculous. Overall, the editing is shrewd and precise throughout the film's two-and-a-half hours.

The superbly chosen cast also deserves credit. The centerpiece is, of course, 80-year-old James Cagney, coaxed out of retirement to play no-nonsense police commissioner Rheinlander Waldo, and he's as feisty and authoritative a screen presence as ever.

The delightful Steenburgen, charismatic Rollins and disarmingly sexy McGovern also give outstanding performances. Although the competition from gifted newcomers and seasoned old pros is fierce in every scene, the beautifully-shaded ensemble playing of the huge cast holds the film together.

Delirious as a champagne opening night, bitter as bigotry and sassy and persuasive as a piano rag, Ragtime is a vigorous, full-bodied movie achievement. Don't miss it.

What's playing at the movies

The Amateur: A suspense-packed espionage thriller. The amateur Charles Heller, played by John Savage, takes matters into his own hands and pursues the terrorists who brutally murdered his girl friend. Heller's pursuit leads him behind the Iron Curtain to a confrontation with the head of Czech intelligence played by Christopher Plummer. Marthe Keller has the sensitive role of a CIA operative in Prague who has little affection for her American employers. The movie is based on Robert Littell's best selling novel. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

An American Werewolf in London: John Landis' film with many full moons, foggy moons, rotting corpses and howling werewolves. "The horror movie to end all horror movies." Rated R. At the Dream Theatre.

The Black Stallion: Produced by Francis Ford Coppola, the film begins with a shipwreck and the survival of a young boy and a horse. They are rescued and returned to the mainland to capture horse racing crowns. Beautiful photography. Entertainment for the entire family. Starring Kelly Reno and Mickey Rooney. Rated G. At the Dream Theatre.

Cannery Row: Filmed on the Monterey Peninsula, this film recreates the boisterous Monterey waterfront of the 1940s.

a haven for derelicts, dreamers and nonconformists who triumph over harsh realities with their compassion and good humor intact. A touching love affair between Doc (Nick Nolte), an enigmatic and eccentric marine biologist and Suzy (Debra Winger), a pretty young drifter determined to survive, begins. Audra Lindley stars as the shrewd, earthy madame. Narrated by John Huston. Rated R. At the Regency Theatre.

Charlots of Fire: A wealthy Jewish boy becomes a star runner and a Scots missionary sprints for the glory of God. The two men, driven in different ways, lead England to gold medals and glory in the 1924 Olympics in Paris. Beautifully blended color photography. Starring Ben Cross, Ian Charleson, and Alice Krige. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough.

Death Wish II: A man played by Charles Bronson, whose family has been viciously assaulted and murdered, devotes his life to vengeance. Jill Ireland and Vincent Gardenia also star. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Evil Under the Sun: Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Montenegro: A whimsical erotic comedy about a pampered American lady (Susan Anspach) going crazy from too much money and not enough sex, who leaves her stolid Swedish-businessman-husband played by Erland Josephson. She finds fulfillment among the coars Yugoslavian emigres who live and work in sexy squalor in a Stockholm distillery. Filmed in English in Sweden. At the Dream Theatre.

On Golden Pond: Katharine Hepburn and Henry Fonda offer a story of a couple still passionately in love after 48 years. Jane Fonda plays their daughter. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Ragtime: The E.L. Doctorow novel about three remarkable families in America at the turn of the century. Stars James Cagney, Debbie Allen, Brad Dourif, Moses Gunn, Norman Mailer and Bessie Love. Directed by Milos Forman. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archeologist and adventurer who somehow survives while his adversaries are impaled on steel spikes, poison darts, dispatched by an airplane propeller and even melted while competing to find the Ark of the Covenant. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theatre.

Shock Treatment: From the creators of "The Rocky Horror Show." At the Dream Theatre.

Shoot the Moon: Diane Keaton and Albert Finney star in an intense drama about love, marriage and a splintered family. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Vice Squad: A drama about the bizarre and frequently violent world of vice squad policemen in Los Angeles. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Duo to perform concert of traditional Irish music

Traditional Irish musicians Kevin Burke and Micheal O'Domhnaill will bring the best of Irish music to Sunset Center, Carmel, at 8 p.m., Sunday, March 7.

Burke and O'Domhnaill are typical of a new kind of Irish traditional musician, no longer playing in pub backrooms for a few shillings but meticulous craftsmen determined to make their music into a profession. Both have greatly influenced the current music scene.

O'Domhnaill has made a name for himself as an innovator, constantly seeking new modes of presentations and new audiences for traditional music whether in his role as performer, broadcaster or record producer.

Burke's main impact has been his music and the discovery by the new mass audience of his whimsical, alluring, old-fashioned fiddle style — music which is not strait-jacketed but unashamedly salty and directly in the old Sligo tradition yet highly personalized.

Both Burke and O'Domhnaill have wide musical interests and are as conversant with modern rock music, American country music or Delta blues as they are with Bobby Casey's fiddling or Cathain's singing. They are equally at home in a Sligo pub-session or behind the knobs in a modern recording studio.

Former members of the Bothy Band, Burke and O'Domhnaill have performed throughout the world. This will be the last gig of their current American tour. Tickets are $7. They are available at Recycled Records, 604 Lighthouse, Monterey and at Do Re Mi Music, The Barnyard, Carmel.

For further information, phone 625-1229.

IRISH MUSICIANS Kevin Burke and Micheal O'Domhnaill, former members of the Bothy Band, will play the guitar and fiddle and sing at 8 p.m. Sunday, March 7 at Sunset Center, Carmel. Performing the best in Irish music, the duo will complete their current American tour with this performance. Admission is $7.

Young artists concert at Sunset

The Carmel Music Society will present its Sixth Annual Young California Artists Competition at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, March 6 at Sunset Theater, Carmel. The Grand Prize winner and selected finalists will present an awards concert at 8 p.m. that evening.

The Carmel Music Society, the oldest nonprofit organization on the Monterey Peninsula, first presented competitions in 1976. The past six competitions had vocal, piano and instrumental categories competing together. This year only vocalists will be entered.

Each of the eight finalists will perform a 25-minute program. Contestants will select their own program which will include three selections from among five style periods — baroque, classic, romantic, impressionist and contemporary.

Judges for the competition will be Helene

Joseph Weil, William Ramsey and James Schwabacher.

Helene Weil, soprano, is a major vocalist teacher in the San Jose area.

Internationally known concert and opera singer, William Ramsey, baritone, has appeared in Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center. He is director of choral activities and chairman of voice committee at Stanford University.

James Schwabacher, tenor, is an opera singer, Carmel Bach Festival artist and founder and vice president of the San Francisco Spring Opera Theater. Schwabacher is vice president of the San Francisco Symphony and a member of the board of trustees of the National Opera Institute.

The public is welcome to attend the competition and the awards concert at no charge. For further information, phone 649-4548.

Classic foreign movies offered by Monterey Peninsula Film Society

Two acclaimed foreign films will be screened this week by the Monterey Peninsula Film Society in the Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren, Monterey.

The Battle of Algiers, filmed in French and Arabic with English subtitles, will be shown Saturday, March 6.

Directed by Gillo Pontecorvo, this film uses a documentary approach to reconstruct the Algerian rebellion against the French between 1954 and 1957. The Battle of Algiers was filmed with such vigor and inventiveness that it seems as if the events are happening for the first time.

The award-winning film from India, Shakespeare Wallah will screen Wednesday, March 10.

Filmed with English dialogue, this film was directed by James Ivory and features music by Satyajit Ray.

The New York Times called Shakespeare Wallah "a gem of delicate, exquisite radiation."

Both films are shown at 8:15 p.m. Admission is $3 general and $2.50 students and society members.

For more information, phone 659-4795.

MPC Film Gallery will screen 'Ryan's Daughter'

The romantic wind-blown Irish coast provides the setting for Ryan's Daughter which will screen at 8 p.m. Friday, March 5 in the Monterey Peninsula College Theatre. The film is presented by the MPC Film Gallery.

Directed by David Lean, this 1970 color film revolves around Rosy Ryan, a romantic girl played by Sarah Miles. Soft, sultry Robert Mitchum plays her school teacher husband. Ryan's Daughter also stars Trevor Howard and Christopher Jones and features John Mills in his Oscar-winning performance as a crippled mute.

Lean, who also directed

Dr. Zhivago and Lawrence of Arabia, captures the political atmosphere of Ireland in 1916. The camerawork which roves over lush countryside received an Academy Award.

Admission is $2. The MPC Theater is located on campus, 980 Fremont, Monterey.

For further information, phone 646-4051.

THE PINE CONE IS YOUR HOMETOWN NEWSPAPER

FOLKSINGER AND MUSICIAN Sally Rogers will perform ballads and songs from America, Ireland and the British Isles at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 10 at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. Sally, who accompanies herself on the banjo, guitar and mountain dulcimer, has given concerts across the country.

On stage

Staff Players Repertory Company, praised for their interpretations of plays by Moliere, stages another of his comedies, The Misanthrope. This 17th century French play tells the story of a man so caught up in his ideals that he cannot function in society.

The Misanthrope is presented at 8:30 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through March 14 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Santa Rita and Mountain View, Carmel.

Tickets are $5 general and $3 students and seniors. Seating is limited. For reservations phone 624-1531.

The Wharf Theater stages Noel Coward's most famous comedy, Private Lives, at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 8 p.m. Sunday through March 7. Romance and humor are intertwined in this story of marriage, divorce and marriage.

The fun begins when a couple, once married and now honeymooning with new spouses at the same hotel, meet accidentally. Their old passion surfaces and they elope. When their abandoned spouses confront them, a rip-roaring scene erupts!

The Wharf Theater is on Old Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey. Tickets are $6 and $8. For reservations, phone 372-2882.

The Cherry Foundation Theatre Project presents Unseen Hosts — Irish Gods, Devils & Daimonds, a series of comic and tragic dramatizations from the land of the leprechauns.

Based on the concept of the shanachie, the Gaelic storyteller who enchants, delights and instructs his listeners with a variety of tales, this production draws from the works of Frank O'Connor, James Joyce, Lord Dunsay and W.B. Yeats and Irish myths. Music ranging from traditional Irish tunes to Turlock O'Carolan to Gregorian chants accompanies the dramatizations.

Unseen Hosts is staged Friday, March 5 and 12; Saturday, March 6 and 13; and Wednesday, March 17 in honor of St. Patrick's Day.

Tickets are $3 and may be purchased at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. For further information, phone 624-7491.

The Studio Theatre Restaurant stages the hilarious British comedy, Breath of Spring through March 6. Peter Coke's play presents five well-bred, elderly Britishers who regain the enthusiasm and daring of youth when they plot to steal furs from the rich and give them to the poor.

Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the play begins at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. The dinner and performance are one hour earlier on Sunday.

The price for dinner and the show is $16 Thursday, Friday and Sunday and $16.50 on Saturday. Admission to the show only is $7.

The Studio Theatre Restaurant on Dolores near Ocean, Carmel. For reservations, phone 624-1661.

California's First Theater brings the fun and good humor of melodrama to the stage with My Lady Darrell. The audience is encouraged to boo and hiss the villain and cheer the hero as he rescues the damsel in distress! This 19th century production is performed by the Troupers of the Gold Coast.

Showtime is 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday throughout March. Admission is $4 adults, $3 teens and, on Friday, $2 for subteens.

Tickets may be purchased at the First Theater, Scott and Pacific streets, Monterey, after 1 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. For further information, phone 375-4916.

Roberto Lupetti will present lecture on 'Art and Italy'

Art and Italy will be the topic of a slide show and lecture presented by Roberto Lupetti at 12:15 p.m. Sunday, March 7 at the Church of Religious Science, Franklin and Pacific, Monterey.

Lupetti, Carmel Valley portrait and landscape artist, will show slides of Italy and discuss the consciousness of the Masters. Samples of Italian pasta will be served.

The public is invited. For further information, phone 375-7160.

Camerata Singers plan concerts

The Camerata Singers, a 16-member chamber ensemble directed by Dr. Vahe Aslanian, will present a concert of operatic and musical theatre highlights at 8 p.m. Friday, March 5 at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Dolores and Ninth, Carmel. The concert will be repeated at 3 p.m. Saturday, March 6 at Madonna Del Sasso Church, 320 E. Laurel, Salinas.

The program will open with arias, duets, trios, quartets and larger ensemble numbers from the operas The Magic Flute, by Mozart, Rigoletto by Verdi and Eugene Onegin by Tchaikovsky.

The second half of the program will feature musical theatre highlights including Summertime, I Got Plenty O'Nuttin', and It Ain't Necessarily So, from Porgy and Bess by George Gershwin. Selections from Carousel and Oklahoma by Rodgers and Hammerstein will also be performed with solos and ensembles.

Accompanying the Camerata Singers will be Rebecca Nelson and Pauline Thomas, duo-pianists, with Dr. Aslanian conducting the ensemble pieces.

The Camerata Singers was formed by Aslanian in the 1981. Their December concert at Carmel Mission Basilica received rich praise as a group which "clearly established itself as the new standard of chamber choir excellence."

The 16 singers have dedicated themselves to the study and performance of a wide variety of vocal literature which ranges from the opera and musical theatre repertoire of this concert to lieder and sacred and secular choral music from the Renaissance to the 20th century.

The carefully selected singers are from Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Salinas, Seaside and Santa Cruz and have impressive musical backgrounds and experiences of performances in churches and concert halls in the United States and Europe.

Tickets are $5.50 and may be purchased at the door one half-hour before the performance.

Camerata Singers plan concerts

The Camerata Singers, a 16-member chamber ensemble directed by Dr. Vahe Aslanian, will present a concert of operatic and musical theatre highlights at 8 p.m. Friday, March 5 at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Dolores and Ninth, Carmel. The concert will be repeated at 3 p.m. Saturday, March 6 at Madonna Del Sasso Church, 320 E. Laurel, Salinas.

The program will open with arias, duets, trios, quartets and larger ensemble numbers from the operas The Magic Flute, by Mozart, Rigoletto by Verdi and Eugene Onegin by Tchaikovsky.

The second half of the program will feature musical theatre highlights including Summertime, I Got Plenty O'Nuttin', and It Ain't Necessarily So, from Porgy and Bess by George Gershwin. Selections from Carousel and Oklahoma by Rodgers and Hammerstein will also be performed with solos and ensembles.

Accompanying the Camerata Singers will be Rebecca Nelson and Pauline Thomas, duo-pianists, with Dr. Aslanian conducting the ensemble pieces.

The Camerata Singers was formed by Aslanian in the 1981. Their December concert at Carmel Mission Basilica received rich praise as a group which "clearly established itself as the new standard of chamber choir excellence."

The 16 singers have dedicated themselves to the study and performance of a wide variety of vocal literature which ranges from the opera and musical theatre repertoire of this concert to lieder and sacred and secular choral music from the Renaissance to the 20th century.

The carefully selected singers are from Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Salinas, Seaside and Santa Cruz and have impressive musical backgrounds and experiences of performances in churches and concert halls in the United States and Europe.

Tickets are $5.50 and may be purchased at the door one half-hour before the performance.

Book party in PG

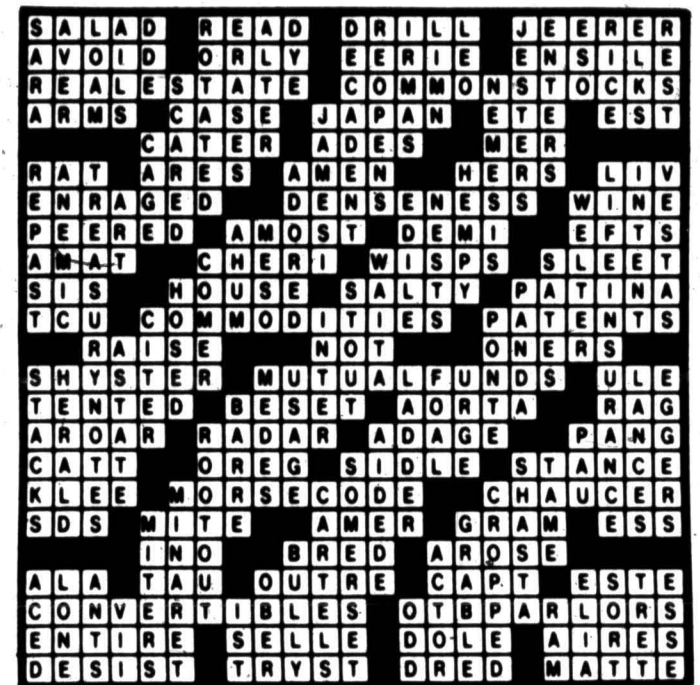

A book party to celebrate the publication of The Politics of Women's Spirituality — Essays on the Rise of Spiritual Power Within the Feminist Movement will be given from 2-5 p.m. Saturday, March 6 at New Age Communications, 176 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove.

Author Charlene Spretnak will be present for personal discussion and to autograph her book. The Politics of Women's Spirituality addresses a range of contemporary issues that are informed by spirituality.

The public is invited at no charge.

For more information, phone 373-0493.

Reception planned for poster-artist Nagel

An exhibition of the works by graphic designer-illustrator Patrick Nagel will open Saturday, March 6 at the Collectors Gallery, 311 B Forest Ave., Pacific Grove.

As a popular graphic designer-illustrator, Patrick Nagel approaches the contemporary art world with style. By contrasting basic good design with the subtle touch of glamor, his art is unmistakable.

Nagel's rendering of women captures the viewer who waits and watches to see whether the faces will let go of the reserved countenance which most of his models wear. The striking slashes of color and play of geometric shapes show the quiet restraint and meticulous detail of a talented artist.

The poster is Nagel's most familiar medium. The artist's composition and color choices are integral to the effectiveness of the work. His style has been likened to "Art Deco," with overtones of oriental minimalism.

Nagel, a featured artist in Playboy magazine, has won numerous awards for his graphic design. He is represented in the Smithsonian Institute and the Library of Congress.

Nagel's Collectors Gallery poster will be on view for the first time. His original acrylics, screenprints and posters will be exhibited from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, March 6 through April 22.

The public is welcome to attend an opening reception for the artist from 7-10 p.m. Saturday, March 6.

For further information, phone 649-8717.

Four photography lectures offered by Museum of Art

The Docent Council of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art will sponsor four photography lectures in conjunction with the Ansel Adams Show. The lectures are scheduled for March 8, 15, 22 and 29.

James Alinder, executive director of the Friends of Photography, Carmel, will speak on The History of Photography on March 8. Alinder, an internationally known photographer and consultant, has an extensive background in photography. His work is shown in museums throughout the world.

The Connoisseurship of Art, a lecture on photographic art as an investment and appreciation of it, will be presented by Lisa Cremin on March 15. Cremin, an executive associate at Weston Gallery, Carmel, was in charge of 19th and 20th Century Photography at Christie's, Manson and Woods International in New York.

Susan Friedman and Martha Pearson will share the topic Portraiture and Documentary on March 22. Friedman has been published and participated in shows throughout the United States, in Asia and Europe. She has taught and lectured in colleges and universities.

An accomplished portraitist, Martha Pearson will share her secrets of blending formality with spontaneity in her delineation of character. Awarded the Imogen Cunningham Photography Award in 1979, Pearson has exhibited her photographs in Carmel, Monterey, New York, Venice and Tokyo.

Landscapes will be the subject of Huntington Witherill on March 29. A student of Ansel Adams, Wynn Bullock, Steve Crouch and Al Weber, he has at age 32 a growing national reputation with numerous exhibitions in museums and galleries. Witherill's fine black and white landscape work is found in many private and public collections.

All lectures will be presented from 10 a.m. until noon in the main gallery of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey. The cost is $3 per lecture for members and $3.50 for non-members.

For more information, phone 372-7591.

Our American Artists...

On March 6th, rather than presenting a one-man show, we are featuring an exhibit of great interest and variety that emphasizes the importance of ALL OF OUR AMERICAN ARTISTS. PG museum will exhibit American Indian pottery

An exhibition of blackware pottery by Maria Martinez of San Ildefonso Pueblo, N.M., will be displayed at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History through March.

The most famous American Indian potter, Martinez and her husband, Julian, are credited with the development of a new style of pottery, the lustrous blackware of San Ildefonso.

Although she made thousands of pieces, each is nonetheless prized by collectors. Martinez died at age 94 in 1980.

The exhibited works come from private collections, the California Academy of Sciences and the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History.

The museum is located at Forest and Central avenues, Pacific Grove. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

The public is welcome at no charge. For further information, phone 372-4212.

Carmel Art Association membership open

The Carmel Art Association will accept applications for membership through Monday, May 3. Artists living within a 35-mile radius of Carmel are eligible to apply. Applications may be obtained at the gallery, Dolores and Sixth, Carmel.

Artists may apply as painters, sculptors or graphic artists. The review will be held on May 10. Membership is provisional for one year to ensure that the quality of work submitted continues.

Membership will be determined by secret ballot of the current Board of the Carmel Art Association. A two-thirds majority vote is required to elect a candidate.

Applicants must submit six recent works.

Depending on the category in which the artist is applying, he must submit six framed paintings, six pieces of sculpture or six graphics. The applicant may submit in only one category.

Each applicant must present at least three drawings. These do not have to be framed or matted. A sketchbook or a portfolio of drawings is sufficient. This is mandatory for all categories.

The jury will make its decision based on originality, continuity, and professional quality.

For additional information, phone 624-6176.

THIS LUSTROUS BLACKWARE of San Ildefonso, made by Marie Martinez and decorated by her husband, Julian, is from the collection of blackware pottery currently exhibited at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History, Forest and Central avenues, Pacific Grove. Prized by collectors, this piece is signed "Marie and Julian." The exhibition will be displayed from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday throughout March.

Cooks' Club will offer two free demonstrations

Fancy veal and potato dishes will be prepared in two free cooking demonstrations presented on Saturday, March 6 and Sunday, March 7 at the Cooks' Club at the Peppercorn Restaurant.

A gourmet dish, Veal Saltimbocca, will be prepared on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. This entree, veal pounded thin and stuffed with prosciutto and cheese, is sauteed and cooked with a white wine sauce.

Potatoes Duchesse, Lorette and Dauphine will be presented in a demonstration titled Pommes de Terre at the same times on Sunday.

The public is welcome to attend.

The Peppercorn Restaurant is located in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

WAITING FOR THE DOWNBEAT, Dixieland Monterey Festival Chairman Alan Caldeira and co-chairmen Bob Gay and Mike Marotta, pose appropriately with a saxophonist statue of Gaspar de Portola, signaling the dawning of a new yearly event on the Monterey Peninsula. Dixieland Monterey is scheduled Friday through Sunday, March 5-7.

Weekend of jazz offers touch of New Orleans

The first annual Dixieland Monterey Festival will bring the toe-tapping, hand-clapping sounds of jazz to Monterey for a three-day event Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 5-7. Continuous music, a Saturday morning parade, an antique car show, hot air balloon display, a visit from the San Diego Chicken, and open jam sessions promise a stellar weekend.

A street parade with antique cars and marching bands will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 6 to kick off the Dixieland Monterey Festival. To begin the parade, a seven-story high, multi-colored hot air balloon provided by Great American Savings and Loan Association will be launched from the Custom House Plaza. The parade will begin at the Conference Center, travel up Calle Principal and down Alvarado Street. The cars will gather on the Doubletree Mall for exhibit.

To create a Bourbon Street atmosphere, 12 bands will rotate among five cabarets set up on Alvarado Street, at the Doubletree Mall and on Old Fisherman's Wharf. The bands will play music continuously. This "path of jazz" includes cabarets in the Brasserie, the Doubletree Inn, Heritage Harbor and Neptune's Table Restaurant.

The impressive list of bands includes The Desert City Six, The Night Blooming Jazzmen, High Sierra Jazz Band, The Fulton Street Jazz Band, The World Famous Desolation Jazz Ensemble and Mess Kit

Repair Battalion, Port City, Professor Plum, Gem City Jazz Band, Monterey Bay Classic Jazz Band, The Jazz Beaux, and two surprise groups from the Monterey Peninsula.

The bands are scheduled to perform on Friday from 7:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.; on Saturday from 1 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.; and on Sunday from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

A $15 all-events badge admits the holder to the five cabarets during the entire three-day Festival. They may be purchased in Monterey at the Record Cove or Marotta's; in Salinas at Gadsby's Music; or, during the Dixieland Monterey Festival, at all the cabarets and at the information booth at the Doubletree Inn, 2 Portola Plaza, Monterey.

For additional information, phone 649-4511.

According to event chairman Alan Caldeira, "This format was chosen rather than one central concert site because it creates a happier occasion. People get to enjoy the intimacy of the cabaret rather than being in an arena. And you can also enjoy the sights as you walk from cabaret to cabaret. Hopefully, the community will benefit from the increase in tourists and foot traffic downtown and increased hotel and motel occupancy from out-of-towners. That's why we chose the off-season as the time of the year for this event."

Introduction to channeling planned

An introduction to channeling, a direct means of communicating with and from levels of consciousness beyond the range of usual human experience, is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 4 at Sunset Center, Carmel.

Channeling is a means of raising consciousness and directing high frequency energy into active use in the physical world. It is claimed to be a means of bridging heaven and earth and bringing the miraculous into manifestation.

Marie Mitchell, who has been active as a channel for many years, will conduct the workshop.

The cost is $8.

Hospital extends free CPR classes

Arthritis Foundation offers lecture

A lecture titled Is it Arthritis? What is the Cause? What Can Be Done About It? will be presented by Dr. Ronald L. Kaye at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 7 in Sunset Center, Carmel.

Dr. Kaye is chairman of the department of rheumatic diseases and director of medical education at Palo Alto Medical Clinic. He is a clinical professor of medicine at Stanford University School of Medicine and a recipient of the National Arthritis Foundation Distinguished Service Award.

Sponsored by the Monterey Branch of the Arthritis Foundation, the lecture is free and open to the public.

For additional information, phone 373-6664.

Knowledge Update focuses on social issues

The Equal Rights Amendment will be the first lecture in a series on current social issues offered by the Monterey Peninsula College Knowledge Update lecture series during March. Attorney Riane Eisler will present the lecture at 1:30 p.m. Friday, March 5 in the MPC Art Building, Room A-9, on campus, 980 Fremont, Monterey.

Founder of the Los Angeles Women's Center legal program and author of The Equal Rights Handbook, Eisler will present an ERA update, with a rundown on the background of the movement, documentation of the major factors involved and a view of the future. She is currently a co-director of the Institute of Futures Forecasting and has written Dissolution, a book dealing with the effects of divorce.

The public is welcome to attend at no charge. For further information, phone 646-4055.

Doctors to speak at Eskaton Hospital

Life Threatening Illnesses will be the topic of a health forum presented at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 4 in the Education Center at Eskaton Monterey Hospital, 576 Hartnell St., Monterey.

Dr. Jon Benner will speak on the surgical aspects of the topic. Family practice will be discussed by Dr. Lee Goldman. Dr. Sadaya Kanaya will speak on pediatrics and Dr. Thomas Kehl will lecture on internal medicine.

The forum is free and open to the public.

For further information, phone 375-2621.

Library offers talk on grey whales

Pat Hughes will present a special film and talk about the California grey whales at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 6 in the Children's Room at the Carmel Valley Library.

The public is welcome. The library is located in the Buckeye Building, 65 W. Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel Valley.

For further information, phone 659-2377.

Mothers vs. drunk drivers to speak at Hartnell

Candy Lightner, a founder of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD), will speak at the Alcohol Awareness Program series from 10 a.m.-noon Saturday, March 6 in Merrill Hall, Hartnell College, 156 Homestead, Salinas.

More people are killed each year by drunk drivers than by any other means. MADD is a volunteer group of surviving relatives of victims formed to fight back.

The Alcohol Awareness Program speaker series is a community education series provided for the benefit of the public. There is no charge to attend.

For additional information, phone 1-757-8166.

UNIMPRESSED BY THE poetry of the poet Oronte (William Oates, right), Alceste (John Brady, seated) and his friend, Philante, listen without interest in The Misanthrope by Moliere. The Staff Players Repertory Company currently stages this 17th century comedy at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Indoor Forest Theater, Santa Rita and Mountain View, Carmel. Tickets are $5 general and $3 students and seniors.

Series on music masters planned

Dr. Alfred Kanwischer and his wife, Heidi, will return to the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall Wednesday, March 10 at 4:30 p.m. to present the first of a lecture/recital series focusing on the music and artistry of Brahms, Ravel, Debussy, Rachmaninoff and Kanwischer.

In the four-part series, Dr. Kanwischer will outline each session with musical examples of each composer's works, along with commentary, examination of their musical scores, readings, biographical data, pictures, recordings and live demonstrations.

At the conclusion of the series, the couple will present a concert featuring Brahms' Variations on a Theme of Joy; Haydn's Opus 56B; Ravel's Mother Goose Suite; Kanwischer's Four Interludes; Debussy's Fetes; and Rachmaninoff's Fantasia Suite No. 1, Opus 5. The concert is at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 4 in the MPC Music Hall on campus, 980 Fremont, Monterey.

Alfred and Heidi Kanwischer boast many years of experience as soloists, duo-pianists, lecturers and master teachers. Their appearances have earned critical acclaim in major U.S. and European cities. The duo has been featured in the prestigious Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood, Ma.; the Dartington Festival in Devon, England; the American Liszt Society in Boston; and the John Ringling Festival in Sarasota, Fla.

The artists met and married during their years of study with the world-renowned Dutch pianist, Egon Petri. A rare dual scholarship award to the Aspen Musical Festival, soon followed by further studies under famed Hungarian virtuoso, Bela Nagy.

Series tickets, including the concert performance, are $12. Individual lecture tickets may be purchased at the door for $3. The Sunday concert is $4.50 at the door.

For further information, phone 646-4051.

UNA celebrates Women's Day

The Monterey Bay Chapter of the United Nations Association will celebrate International Women's Day with a no-host luncheon and discussion at noon Monday, March 8 in the Thunderbird Restaurant, The Barnyard, Highway One and Rio Road, Carmel.

Active international feminists, Rosemary Matson and Pearl Ross will speak on Population and Peace from an International Feminist Perspective. Ross, who will discuss the issue of population, attended the United Nations International Women's Conferences at Mexico City in 1975 and at Copenhagen in 1980. Matson, a delegate to the International Association for Religious Freedom at the Copenhagen Conference, led a workshop on Women as Influenced by Religion at the conference. She will lecture on the issue of peace.

Both women contend that feminism is the hope of the future. Matson says "global war and nuclear disaster are rapidly being brought on by a combination of fierce competition for the earth's resources diminishing from population pressures and by an aggressive macho drive for power over others residing in a few men."

The public is welcome to attend.

Free films screened by library

Two short films will be shown by the Monterey Public Library at 2 p.m. today, March 4.

Actress, singer, writer Hildegard Knef narrates Berlin, an extensively historical yet highly personal view of this German city.

Berlin is portrayed as a city of political consequence, a city torn by war and by decadence. "Most Berliners feel that the very limitations of the city help keep it alive. Having lost its status as a national capital, Berlin has become an international city open to the world," Knef stated.

Narrated by Eli Wallach, Memoirs of a Movie Palace is a sentimental journey to Loew's Kings Theatre on Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, New York. Built in the 1920s, it is a huge baroque-rococo, motion picture-stage show palaces, now unused, sad and seedy.

The public is welcome free of charge. For further information, phone 646-3930.

Captioned 'Robin Hood' offered

A captioned film version of The Story of Robin Hood will be shown at 7 p.m. Friday, March 5 at Monterey Peninsula College, Humanities 101, 980 Fremont, Monterey. The screening is sponsored by the Captioned Films for the Deaf Program.

Starring Richard Todd, this color film tells the story of the days of King Richard the Lionhearted and his crusades. Robin Hood, the most celebrated English outlaw, and his band of men battle the greedy sheriff of Nottingham and the unjust laws of the land. This romantic story never ceases to fire the imagination.

This film is recommended for all ages. The public is welcome at no charge.

Scraps supplement wholesome diet

By JUDITH A. EISNER

SOMEONE WE KNOW, who was raised on a farm in the Midwest, has an interesting theory about feeding her dog. During the week, while her husband is away from home, she feeds the dog a diet of a well-known dry kibble and an astonishing array of table scraps — leftover canned soups, macaroni and cheese, stews, beans, toast, pancakes, vegetables — whatever gets scraped off the plate.

When her husband returns each weekend, he proceeds to "spoil" the dog by feeding it a very expensive brand of all-meat canned dogfood.

The dog is six years old, in generally good health and has raised several litters of healthy puppies on this erratic diet with only non-fat powdered milk added while she was pregnant or nursing.

Years ago, the average family or farmyard dog existed primarily on a diet of table scraps. He got the leftover cold breakfast porridge, the potatoes from noontime dinner, some fat and bones from the evening meal and whatever else could not be eaten by the family. If he were lucky, he received some milk straight from the cow's udder and possibly broken eggs from the henhouse now and then. No doubt, he hunted whenever possible and rounded out his diet with fresh rabbit.

Many of these dogs were real workers, herding sheep and cattle, patrolling the property against intruders and spending long days in the field hunting with their masters. What kept them going on this strange diet?

UNSAVORY as they may sound, these strange combinations of plate scrapings and odds and ends probably provided a diet as wholesome and well-balanced as the scientifically prepared dry and canned dogfoods we buy today. Of course, the dog's diet was not properly balanced at each meal, and possibly not even each week. But over a period of time he no doubt received from this odd assortment all the nutrients he needed.

An interesting exception was found in the deep South years ago when dogs were commonly fed only leftover cornmeal mush. These dogs, like their human owners, frequently suffered from pellagra in canine form — Black Tongue disease.

Although the dog is technically a carnivore or meat-eater, neither dogs nor any living creature can maintain good health for long on an exclusive diet of lean red meat.

The farm dog of yore, our acquaintance's canine gourmand mentioned above and wild carnivores in general balance their diets by eating an assortment of meats, fat, bones, grasses, berries, roots and, most important, the stomach contents of whatever small animals they killed. In this fashion, by consuming the entire animal, they received the benefits of the grains and grasses on which their prey fed, as well as the minerals gained by crunching up the bones.

TODAY, chances are your pet dog thrives mainly on a diet of commercially available pet foods. Most of these foods provide every nutrient commonly required by the domestic dog.

But, interestingly, if you read labels as we do, you will find that almost all dry dogfoods — kibble, biscuit or meal — is primarily composed of grains. Corn, wheat, soy and sometimes bran are included, as are a number of long-winded chemicals, vitamins, minerals, fish meals and beef by-products. It is difficult, in feeding a commercial dogfood, to avoid feeding lots of artificial flavorings, colorings and preservatives. In that respect, the scrap-eating dog may have been better off than the modern dog.

The increasing interest among many people today to use organic foods and the large number of total vegetarians often creates a problem for the dog. Veterinarians report that many people have tried to turn their dogs into vegetarians. And while humans may do very well for extended periods of time on brown rice, lentils and soybeans, their dogs do not. Just as an all-meat diet leads to malnutrition and illness in dogs, so does a meat-free one.

Ideally, if expense and convenience were not important considerations in determining your dog's diet, you could make up your own dogfood. You could begin with bite-sized chunks of well-marbled chuck roast, add crushed shredded wheat biscuits or steamed brown rice or whole wheat toast, mix in vegetable oil or butter and top it all off with cod liver oil, brewer's yeast powder, limewater and wheat germ. Pour a rich broth over all and try to get the dog to eat the entire meal without picking out the beef chunks!

Any housewife aware of current food prices can see that feeding Fido in this manner would strain the budget. Imagine cutting up a half pound or more of good "people beef" every day to feed the dog!

Although dogs don't require a varied diet, you can add to and supplement a good-quality commercial diet by adding ground or cut up beef, soft or hard boiled eggs, cottage cheese, boned fish, chicken or turkey scraps, liver and organ meats (in small quantities), and small portions of leftover cooked vegetables, including potatoes. A lean dog may be fed cooked pasta or rice for added carbohydrates. Many dogs seem to like a moderate amount of buttermilk added to their kibble.

If adding wholesome table scraps doesn't spoil the dog's appetite for his regular food and if it doesn't lead to overweight, there is no reason for a healthy dog not to enjoy "people food" along with dogfood. But unless you are willing to learn a great deal about canine nutritional requirements, don't depend on table scraps to nourish your pet entirely.

First new MST bus arrives

The first of 21 new buses for Monterey-Salinas Transit has been delivered. MST maintenance personnel are inspecting the coach and preparing it for service. The new bus is expected to be on the street by the first week of March.

MST has ordered 21 of the model "870" Advanced Design Buses from the Grumman Flexible Corporation of Delaware, Ohio. Total value of the contract is $3.1 million.

Charles W. Benson, MST Chairman of the Board, noted that MST was able to convince the manufacturer and the federal government to restore some common-sense features of older design buses. These include windows that slide open for ventilation and more convenient interior hand rails. In addition, a newly-designed engine will result in increased fuel economy and better performance, while virtually eliminating visible exhaust.

The new buses will permit the retirement of buses which are up to 33 years old. These include buses on lease, overage buses owned by MST, and two small buses which have proved to be unreliable and have high maintenance costs. Some of the older model buses will be seeing more extensive use as a result of MST's service expansion on February 27. However, MST expects to have retired all the older coaches by the end of March.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 82-5

AN ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING HOLIDAYS FOR CITY EMPLOYEES DECLARING THAT GOOD FRIDAY SHALL NOT BE A HOLIDAY

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. Municipal Code Section 240-59 of Article IX of Part II is amended in its entirety to read as follows:

240.59 HOLIDAYS: Holidays shall be those fixed by the Government Code of the State of California, except that:

a. Statewide election days shall not be holidays.

b. Columbus Day, the second Monday in October, shall not be a holiday.

c. The Friday following Thanksgiving and the last working day preceding Christmas shall be holidays.

d. Good Friday shall not be a holiday or partial holiday.

In the event a holiday falls on a Saturday, municipal departments shall remain open on the preceding Friday, but employees shall be given either the preceding Friday or the following Monday as in-lieu holidays, at the discretion of the Department Head.

Section 2. Section 240.59 of Exhibit "A" attached to Ordinance No. 79-24 dated November 8, 1979 is repealed.

Section 3. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance, if for any reason held to be invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The City Council hereby declares that it would have passed this Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause and phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared invalid.

Section 4. Effective Date: This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 23rd day of February, 1982, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCILMEMBERS: ARNOLD, BROWN, BRUNN, LLOYD, LAIOLO

NOES: COUNCILMEMBERS: None

NOTICE OF DEATH OF WARREN WILLIAM SPINDLER, also known as WARREN W. SPINDLER, WARREN SPINDLER AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE CASE NO. MP 7711

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate of: WARREN WILLIAM SPINDLER, WARREN W. SPINDLER, WARREN SPINDLER.

A petition has been filed by Margaret R. Stone, Attorney at Law in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that Margaret R. Stone, Attorney at Law be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act.

A hearing on the petition will be held on March 19, 1982 at 9:30 a.m. in the County Courthouse, Monterey, California.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 700 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file a request with the court to receive special notice of the filing of the inventory of estate assets and of the petitions, accounts and reports described in section 1200 of the California Probate Code.

Petitioner, Attorney for petitioner: Margaret R. Stone, Attorney at Law

"ELEVEN-NIS" and THE INEFFICIENT CARMEL MARKET

Victor Borge coined the phrase, "Eleven-nis, anyone?" as an inflation of, "Ten-nis, anyone?" Linguistic inflation is silly; real inflation is serious. Inflation affects everyone, especially home buyers.

Home sellers call inflation profit. Linguistic inflation again? No, it's an example of the workings of efficient & inefficient markets.

In an efficient market, everyone has the same information and hourly price quotes available. Profit comes through luck and holding a commodity over time.

In an inefficient market like real estate, profit comes through skill at negotiating, appraising, decorating, building, financing. Your profit is made at the time you buy and close escrow.

Is profit the only motive for buying on the Monterey Peninsula? Yes and no. Carmel, Big Sur, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach are all great places to live. Because so many agree, and the demand is chasing the limited supply, there is profit. Here and now, it's time to buy.

ALL CARMEL

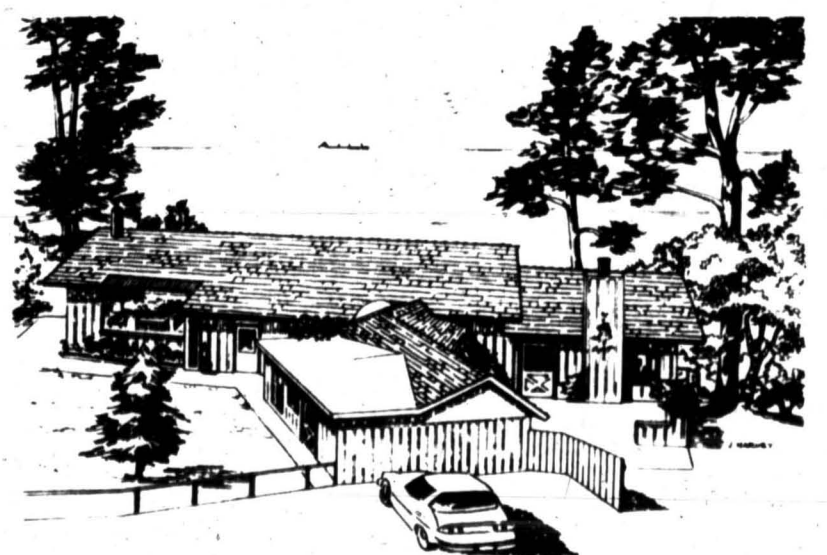

IN CARMEL — WALK TO TOWN

This newly rebuilt Carmel residence incorporates yesterday's charm with today's convenience; cathedral ceilings, skylights, leaded and stained glass, clawfoot tubs, brass fixtures and top quality construction with Jenn-Air built-ins. Flexible floor plan features three bedrooms, each with its own bath and private entrance. Central courtyard includes redwood hot tub. Location is excellent — only one block to downtown, yet this Chalet overlooks extensive greenbelt and affords total privacy. $385,000, with owner-assisted financing.

WHEN CONSIDERING CARMEL

This typically Carmel cottage is surrounded by a colorful country garden. Interior space is open and sun-drenched — cathedral ceilings, a hideaway loft, and an updated kitchen with garden window. There are two bedrooms and two baths, and the master suite features sliding glass doors opening onto an inviting, walled patio. Home is insulated and situated on an extra large lot, with two diminutive structures in back yard, used now as guest sleeping area and workshop; a property well-cared for and immaculate inside and out. $240,000.

"DRAGONPINES," SO. CARMEL COAST

Serenity and grandeur surround "Dragonpines," a most spectacular residence on the South Carmel Coast. Beamed redwood ceilings, parquet flooring, new carpeting, rich tiles and grasscloth all grace this 3 bedroom, 2 bath home which boasts views of the ocean and Mal Paso Canyon from each room. The special family room even features its own separate entrance, efficiency kitchen and fireplace. A bonus studio/workshop, a key to your own private beach, atrium and observation deck, complete a most unique offering. Reduced by over $200,000. To $447,500.

If . . .

If you had a choice between a 2 carat diamond with a small flaw and a 1 carat stone that's perfect, which would you take? If your choice is perfection, then this house is for you: deliberately small, ingeniously perfect.

It's set back on a 40 x 100 lot at the south end of Carmel, a quiet wooded block not far from the sea. The exterior is redwood panels accented by battens. A broad redwood deck wraps around the front and north side, and graceful oaks provide shade.

The entrance is at the end of the deck, opening to a white, well lighted hall. The cheerful living room is down 3 steps to the right, with windows on 3 sides, white walls of planks, beamed cathedral ceiling, and a charming fireplace bordered in beautiful Italian tile. The floors here, and every place but the kitchen, are carpeted in soft beige.

The kitchen, at the rear, is a model of good taste and efficient planning. Walls are papered in sunny yellow, the floor is tan and white vinyl, cabinets are light-colored wood, and counters are white tile with high splash-backs. A skylight is just above the sink, and again there are windows on 3 sides. One is a Dutch door, opening out to a small brick patio.

There are 2 bedrooms and 2 full baths. The master suite at the front is an 18 x 13 chamber with steep cathedral ceiling, great French doors opening to the deck, and more windows on front and south side. Closets line the inner wall, and beyond them is the spacious master bath. Theatrical lighting tops the huge mirrors, counters are white tile, a tub and shower with window fill the south wall.

The second bedroom and bath lie between living room and kitchen. This, too, has a beamed ceiling, copious closets, and lots of light. The second bath has a large glassed-in shower and more theatrical lighting.

The present owners have called this "Escape III," an accurate description in two words. It's ideal as a weekend retreat, and just as suitable as a full time home. There's very little care, everything's in place, it's fresh as a new penny. If you're tired of maintaining a mansion but reluctant to give up the comforts, see "Escape III." It's $275,000.

CARMEL CHARM

UPDATED but with all the ambience that attracted you to Carmel left intact. This is a remodeled two-bedroom, two bath home set on an oversized lot — which means lots of open space on the rear. The location is south of Ocean Avenue, within an easy stroll of the village. All YOU have to do is move in your furniture. We'll provide the washer, dryer, dishwasher, disposal, stove, refrigerator, water softener, window coverings (including shutters), and carpeting ... even the fireplace tools. How can you lose? 279,500.

QUALITY FOR THE ASKING

START WITH LOCATION ... on a choice corner double lot south of Ocean Avenue, one of Carmel's top residential neighborhoods. Place on it a superbly maintained three-bedroom, three-bath home, and surround it with lovely gardens on all four sides, including a sun-drenched and secluded patio to the rear. Make sure the master bedroom, dining room and kitchen look out to the patio. Arrange the spacious living room into cozy conversational groupings, with one in front of the fireplace. There you have the recipe for Carmel living in the finest tradition! $495,000.

OPEN SUN. 1-4 P.M. A TOUCH OF CLASS

ON CARMEL POINT ... only two short blocks to the beach within sound and sight of surf ... a two-bedroom, two-bath home with style, seclusion, GREAT views, an oversized lot, and room for expansion. In addition to the two bedrooms, there's a separate apartment for your guests or a caretaker. See it at 2429 San Antonio Avenue south. $389,000.

SOUTH OF OCEAN

ON A TREE-SHADED lane in Carmel, a cozy two-bedroom home close to beach and village, with spacious living room and handsome stone fireplace. Two baths, modern kitchen. Peek of water and Point Lobos from sunny deck with its hot tub. Big but easy care garden. A top location! $330,000.

Carmel Valley

Ridge after ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains are included in the 180-degree view captured by window walls opening to decks and patios wrapping round a redwood, contemporary home, and, increasing enjoyment of a 2.5-acre, sunny site, are a swimming pool and hot tub, both with their own decks and solar heat. A guest suite downstairs with separate entrance is another attraction of this Los Tulares property.

Featuring a Carmel stone fireplace, the living/dining area has paneled walls and beamed ceilings of redwood tinted to harmonize with beige carpeting. Similar interior treatment is in the master bedroom and bath, also two more bedrooms. The second bathroom and an entrance hall have tile floors.

Skylights and clerestory windows brighten the kitchen with passthrough to the living/dining area, matching tile floor and countertops, a wealth of cabinets, topline electrical appliances. Off the kitchen are a laundry and a half-bath.

Across a side garden, the nightlighted pool enclosure has 850 sq. ft. of sundeck, a shower and bar, also vast view.

The hot tub is outside the guest apartment featuring window walls, beamed ceilings, paneling, carpeting, fireplace in the living room, a compact kitchen, a bedroom and bath. A double garage with a dark room, forced air gas heat with separate controls for upstairs and downstairs increase the livableness of this pleasingly private property. $285,000.
